

ROOSEVELT DEMANDS 'MORE CERTAIN JUSTICE' TO HALT 'COLLECTIVE MURDER' BY LYNCH LAW

FIRST WITNESSES FOR BOYKIN, M'RAE TAKE STAND TODAY

Trial of Libel Suits Launched After Three Days Are Consumed in Bitter Arguments Over Legal Questions.

ART YOUNG EXHIBIT EXCLUDED BY JUDGE

McRae's Demurrer Upheld; Deposition Dealing With Alleged Bribe-Taking Admitted.

First witnesses in the actions in which W. G. McRae and Solicitor General John A. Boykin are suing each other for a total of $400,000 for alleged libel, growing out of campaign utterances, probably will take the stand late today.

Three days already have been consumed in an effort to unravel legal questions that have resulted in prolonged arguments between opposing counsel, with each side fighting bitterly for the advantage and the actual trial was launched at about noon Wednesday.

Attorney Marion Smith, of Boykin's counsel, this morning will continue to read into the record of Boykin's pleadings affidavits, depositions and other documents in support of the contention that McRae accepted a $3,000 bribe while he was a justice of the peace at Miami Beach, to influence his official conduct in binding over to a superior court a defendant charged with embezzlement.

The McRae forces won a decisive victory Wednesday when Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, presiding at the trial in city court, upheld a demurrer in objection to the inclusion of a purported exhibit to Boykin's amended affidavit in the form of a detailed affidavit by Boykin setting forth his connection with the return from Utah of Art Young in the notorious bunco cases, in which McRae has charged Boykin accepted $450 from Young and later quashed charges against him in Fulton county courts. Boykin's contention is that $400 of the money for Young's return was furnished by Fulton county, and $50 advanced by the solicitor general himself, and that the money received from Young was in repayment of expenses incurred in his return.

The balance of legal technical advantage swung to the Boykin side when Judge Dorsey, after hearing lengthy arguments from both sides, admitted in evidence the deposition of S. J. Tillman, taken before a commissioner in Washington, D. C., which deals with the transaction in Miami Beach in which McRae is accused of bribetaking. George Finch, attorney for McRae, argued that the whole deposition should be excluded because the witness had refused to answer questions propounded to him which he was asked the name of his father, and whether his name had ever been

Liquor Licensing Law Is Voted for Augusta

Federal Government Masses Forces for Concerted Drive on Post-Repeal Bootlegging.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(UP)—The government massed its forces tonight to drive the bootlegger out of business and punish other law violators taking advantage of the immediate confusion surrounding repeal of federal prohibition to produce or distribute alcoholic beverages illegally.

Special attention is being paid to prices. The policy of the administration is to keep the cost of liquor low enough so the consumer will not patronize bootleggers, and yet high enough to allow the industry a fair profit.

This was the immediate problem before Dr. James M. Moran, former commissioner of industrial alcohol, who resigned to head the code authority of the distilled spirits industry. The distillers are compelled under their code to post prices of sale with the federal alcohol control administration, which has the authority to raise or lower the prices to meet existing conditions. Members of the control board gave this phase of the situation concern.

City Council Passes Ordinance "Legalizing" Alcoholic Beverages in Face of State Law.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 6.—(AP)—The city council tonight passed an ordinance permitting the sale of liquor in Augusta in the face of the state's prohibition law.

The liquor licensing ordinance permits the sale of alcoholic, vinous and malt beverages. A tax of $300 was placed on retailers of alcoholic drinks and $1,000 on wholesalers. Vinos and malt beverages may be sold for a $50 retail license and $300 for wholesalers.

The ordinance was passed, 8 to 6, on a second ballot after the first ballot resulted in a 7 to 7 tie.

The city's defiance of the state laws followed similar action on beer in a number of Georgia towns and cities. Soon after 3:30 p. m. the city council, constitutional Atlanta, Augusta and a number of other passed business tax measures licensing beer dealers, which has the authority to raise or lower the prices to meet existing conditions. Members of the control board gave this phase of the situation concern.

BILLION OFFERED IN U. S. SECURITIES TO AID FINANCING

Maturing Certificates of Indebtedness Will Be Accepted in Exchange for New Issue.

By RICHARD L. TURNER.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—To meet notes falling due and pay interest on other obligations, the government tonight sought to borrow nearly a billion dollars for one year at two and one-quarter per cent.

With payments of $842,000,000 to be made on December 15, the treasury offered to the investing public $950,000,000 or "thereabouts" in certificates of indebtedness with the proviso usual to such operations that maturing obligations would be accepted in exchange for the new issue.

The issues which come due on the fifteenth are one of $473,325,000 bearing 4 1/4 per cent interest, and one of $254,364,500 at three-quarters of 1 per cent. The combined interest charges for one year on the two total $22,000,000. By replacing them with 2 1/4s the treasury stands to save more than $6,000,000 in interest during the coming year.

Interest on Public Debt. Beside the $727,000,000 in maturing certificates, interest payments on the public debt totaling $114,000,000 will be due December 15. By floating a total new issue of $950,000,000, the treasury will increase its working capital by some $252,000,000. It already stands at $1,033,000,000, and income tax payments of more than $100,000,000 are expected on December 15. However, in the next six months, officials estimate that almost three billions must be paid out, largely in connection with the public works program. A bond issue, authorized to meet these costs by congress, is expected before the winter is over.

The financing plans announced today took no consideration of the billion dollars in called fourth Liberty loan bonds still outstanding. A bond issue offered in exchange for the Liberty bonds is expected soon. Of the total of $8,000,000,000 in fourth Liberty bonds, $1,575,000,000 were called in October. The balance of the issue, $6,425,000,000, will be called March 15.

Bonds bearing 4 1/4 per cent the first year and 3 1/4 thereafter were offered in exchange for the called securities with all holders of fourth Liberty bonds eligible for the exchange as well. The response, announced today at the treasury, totaled approximately $1,000,000,000.

Lindberghs Hailed at Natal, Brazil, After Hop Across Ocean From Africa

NATAL, Brazil, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A keen-eyed watcher caught the first glimpse of the Lindberghs' great monoplane as it bored in from the Atlantic. Whistles of harbor launches and other craft set up a terrific din of welcome that was matched by the mighty roar of "viva" from the crowds on the waterfront.

Straight in toward the harbor the plane flew, and passed above the cheering throng. Lindbergh banked it gracefully over the town and set it down smoothly in the harbor.

First Woman to Fly Atlantic. With the alighting of the ship, Mrs. Lindbergh became the first woman ever to fly in an airplane across the South Atlantic.

When welcoming delegations reached the anchored monoplane, Lindbergh's words, as usual, were few.

"It was a fine trip," he said, "with fine flying conditions. We encountered occasional strong south winds."

That was his sole immediate comment on the flight. In addition, he thanked an official committee for the warm welcome extended Mrs. Lindbergh and himself. He was greeted by the government "interventor," Mario Camaraz, who extended an official welcome in the name of President Getulio Vargas and the state of Rio Grande do Norte, of which Natal is the capital.

The official launch carried Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh to the docks.

M'CUTCHEON WINS 2ND WARD POSITION

Former Councilman Returned Over Opponent by Vote of 1,691 to 1,219.

Howard C. McCutcheon, former councilman, Wednesday elected councilman from the second ward over his opponent, Warren W. Leak, the incumbent, who claimed he was the nominee, although McCutcheon bore the designation.

McCutcheon had 1,691 votes in the 34 ballot boxes, while Leak mustered 1,219. McCutcheon's margin was 472 votes.

The Leak-McCutcheon set-to was the only contest in the election, 23 other democratic nominees obtaining their positions without opposition.

Voters of the city settled the second ward dispute after the democratic nomination—in which the September-October Fulton county grand jury figured, in which Leak filed a futile contest and which was marked by a declaration of McCutcheon by the executive committee as the nominee by a majority of one vote in the September 20 primary.

Those elected without opposition in Wednesday's balloting are:

Second ward, John F. Scott; third ward, J. Sid Tiller; sixth, Robert Carpenter; ninth, J. Glover Bailey; thirteenth, Ellis B. Barrett.

Councilmen:

First, H. Turner Locher; third, G. Dan Bridges; fourth, Joseph E. Bernan; fifth, William Knight; sixth, John M. Owen; seventh, John H. Marler; eighth, J. Frank Beck; ninth, Howard Haire; tenth, J. Raymond

PRESIDENT CUTS AAA CODE POWER

Farm Negotiations Shifted to NRA as Peek and 'Brain Trusters' Clash.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(UP)—Powers of the agricultural adjustment administration were sharply curtailed tonight when part of its code work was transferred to the national recovery administration by President Roosevelt.

This change was announced by the White House tonight following a late evening visit by George N. Peek, agricultural adjustment administrator, as the culmination of a sharp controversy within the agriculture department, with Secretary Wallace reported to be taking the side of the brain trust group as against Peek.

Wallace Consulted.

Mr. Roosevelt consulted by telephone with Wallace and Recovery Administrator Johnson before announcing the change.

The White House statement, issued at 11 p. m., while Mr. Roosevelt himself was addressing the Federal Council of Churches, announced that all codes under negotiation by AAA would be turned over to NRA, excepting those pertaining to manufacturers engaged in the first processing of agricultural products and handlers previous to the first processing.

This was interpreted to mean that all AAA code negotiations would be transferred to NRA except those covering such industries as milling, packing, canning and others dealing directly with raw farm produce.

Peek's visit to the White House tonight marked the culmination of a smoldering controversy within the agriculture department in which he was in conflict with Secretary Wallace and the liberal group headed by Professor Rex Tugwell, first assistant secretary, Jerome Frank, counsel for AAA, and Frederic Howe, consumers' counsel.

Peek Angered.

Secretary Wallace in a press conference today angered Peek by questioning the success of codes and making agreements under AAA as a major aid to the farmers. Wallace stressed control of production in which he said Peek had stressed codes and marketing agreements.

The change tonight apparently was designed to get the codes as far as possible out of the turmoil at the agriculture department and over into more sympathetic hands at General Johnson's headquarters two blocks away.

Tonight's announcement was preceded by feverish rumblings from both sides. Peek was reported to have told intimates today that Frank would have to go out. Brain trusters were reported to have reported that Peek would have to go.

Tonight's announcement was construed in some quarters as indicating President Roosevelt was seeking to avert a breakdown in his important agricultural recovery organization by shifting the center of most of the contention into other hands.

Four More Arrested In Missouri Lynching

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Four more men were being held at police headquarters here today for questioning in connection with the lynching here last week of Lloyd Warner, negro youth accused of attacking a white woman.

Their detention brings to six the number of persons held. No charges had been filed against the quartet today and their names were not made public.

They are to be questioned by William O. Sawyer, assistant attorney-general, who is in charge of the state's investigation of the mob's action. Meanwhile Sawyer was busy collecting the names of 50 witnesses he plans to have examined by a grand jury next week.

Shortage of $5,609.84 in Office Accounts Charged to One-Time Official

J. Ben Daniel, former city marshal, and the Metropolitan Casualty Corporation, of New York, Daniel's surety, were made joint defendants Wednesday in a suit for $5,609.84 brought by the city to recover alleged shortages in Daniel's accounts.

The discrepancies in Daniel's accounts were listed as shortages from accounts while he served as marshal, and were catalogued as being present in advertising fees for f. f. f. and in marshal's fees.

Suit was brought to recover the amounts in the city court of Atlanta by City Attorney James L. Mayson, who charged that Daniel or employees of his office while he served as a city official obtained the funds, but failed to make a proper accounting.

Wednesday's action is the third suit filed by the city, two others having been listed previously. A total shortage of more than $7,000 is claimed by the city.

The Atlanta city council abolished the position of marshal, and created a post of municipal revenue collector at the expiration of Daniel's term. Riley Elder was elected for a four-year term to the position, Daniel being a candidate up to the time of the election, but at the last minute withdrawing his name from the contest.

Auditor's check of Daniel's records revealed discrepancies, and Mayor James L. Key ordered a thorough probe. When it was found that actual shortages existed, Mayson was instructed to proceed against Daniel and his bondsmen to protect the city's interests.

U. S. May Reindict Dry Law Violators

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The department of justice was said authoritatively tonight to be considering the possibility of reindicting under the revenue laws bootleggers, rum runners and moonshiners against whom charges of violating the dry laws are pending.

Reindictment is possible, it was explained, if these handlers sold their wares without paying federal taxes and if the statute of limitation does not interfere. Payment of taxes by a bootlegger would have been most unusual, it was pointed out.

An alternative solution which is likewise receiving consideration, is the dismissal of all pending liquor cases except those involving violation of the revenue laws.

More Scout Troops To Take Part in Christmas Parade

By THE PARADE DIRECTOR.

It was a busy day Wednesday at parade headquarters, 137 Peachtree Arcade. Several additional Scout troops have been added to the parade to take part in the Christmas parade. Scout Troop No. 2 of Hapeville, Ga., headed by Jack Grantham, scoutmaster; Troop No. 3 of Hapeville, headed by J. H. Stakely, scoutmaster; and Troop No. 4 of Hapeville, headed by J. H. Stakely, scoutmaster, will vie for honors in the big Santa Claus parade to be held at 7:30 Friday night, December 15. Also Scout Troop No. 1 of College Park, with H. C. Stakely, scoutmaster, will try to win one of the three big cups which The Constitution is offering for the best drilled and best-appearing Scout troop in the parade.

Santa Claus has sent word that five additional floats have been added to those which he is bringing from the north pole and that since Atlanta has made such wonderful plans for his reception, he will bring more funniness than he has in years.

Headed the parade will be Governor Talmadge, Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp, Mayor James L. Key and Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution. They will lead the parade from Baker street to the reviewing stand at Five Points, where they will take their places in the reviewing stand. The parade will proceed south on Whitehall to Mitchell and it is there that the orphans will park and see the entire parade in its entirety. The parade will proceed to the state capitol, where it will disband.

Reduced Rail Fares. Information has been received from the Southeastern Passenger Association that all railroads operating in the state will have extremely low round trip fares to Atlanta for the big parade and indications point to one of the largest crowds that Atlanta has ever seen. There will be plenty of confetti and streamers galore. More than 10,000 bags of confetti will be given free to children along the parade route.

Following the parade, the city-wide charity ball, sponsored by Atlanta's service organizations and The Atlanta Constitution, will be held at the Shrine mosque, starting promptly at 10 o'clock. The ticket sale, so far, is far above expectations and plans are being made to take care of the largest crowd ever to attend a dance in the city of Atlanta. There will be 20 boxes to be sold to leading citizens of Atlanta.

Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution, was the first purchaser of a box and it is expected that other prominent Atlantans will follow with their orders. There will be eight seats in each box. There will also be 200 reserved seats at $2.50 each. Tickets for the charity ball are now on sale at the following locations, and others will be added:

All Lane Drug Stores, all Jacobs Drug Stores, Piedmont hotel, Schaefer's Pharmacy, Shrine Mosque, Regenstein's Peachtree store, Bryck's, Nat. Kaiser's, Weinstock's, Atlanta Golf Shop, Miles Service Station, R. R. Jennings' Studio, 137 Peachtree Arcade.

The judge said that repeal of the eighteenth amendment nullified the court's power in cases growing out of infractions of the now dead law. Please for abatement in such cases will be acceptable, he said.

District Attorney J. R. McCracy disagreed with the judge, however, and said that he would appeal to a higher court for authority to prosecute offenders who violated the liquor law before its repeal.

CARRIER EARNINGS SHOW LARGE GAINS

Net Income in Ten-Month Period Totals $398,238, 658, New Report Reveals

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(UP)—Treasures of the nation's class one railroads during the first 10 months of this year were substantially fuller than in the corresponding period of 1932, reports filed with the bureau of railway economics showed today.

Net railway operating income for the period was $398,238,658 compared to $260,616,478 in the first 10 months of 1932 and represented an annual rate of return on property investment of 1.77 per cent compared to 1.13 per cent.

Southern carriers recorded the greatest degree of business improvement with operating incomes of $48,931,139 and $16,730,795 in the 1933 and 1932 periods, respectively. The rate of return on property investment was 1.77 per cent, increasing from .60 to 1.77 per cent.

Property investment, the bureau explained, is the value of road and equipment, including materials, supplies and cash. Net railway operating income represents what remains in a carriers treasury after payment of operating expenses, taxes and equipment rentals. Interest and other fixed charges are not included.

Gross operating revenues fell from $2,692,708,737 last year to $2,592,440,961 this, but at the same time expenses were reduced.

PRESIDENT SEES PERIOD OF GAIN FOR ALL CLASSES

Chief Executive Tells Church Council Mob Brutality Never Can Be Condoned, But Urges Swifter Legal Action.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt in an address tonight called lynching "a vile form of collective murder."

The president also indirectly rebuked Governor James Rolph, of California, who recently expressed approval of mob action in San Jose, California, which resulted in the death of two men.

"We do not excuse those in high places or in low who condone lynch law," Mr. Roosevelt said.

He did not, however, in his speech before the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America directly refer to the California lynching or to similar incidents recently in Missouri and Maryland.

Faith in New Generation. Mr. Roosevelt expressed faith in the "new generation" as a preliminary to his strong condemnation of mob violence.

"This new generation, for example," he said, "is not content with preaching against that vile form of collective murder—lynch law—which has broken out in our midst anew. We know that it is murder—and a deliberate and definite disobedience of the commandment, 'Thou shalt not kill.' We do not excuse those in high places or in low who condone lynch law."

"But a thinking America goes further, seeks a comment on its own that will be sufficiently strong to protect the prison and at the same time crystallize a public opinion so clear that government of all kinds will be compelled to practice a more certain justice."

"The judicial function of the government is the protection of the individual and of the community through quick and certain justice. That function in many places has fallen into a sad state of disrepair. It must be a part of our program to re-establish it."

Sees Great Gain. In his first public utterance since returning from Warm Springs, Ga., where he is recuperating from a long illness, the president said the government was seeking the goal the churches look toward and that "from the bottom of my heart I enter upon a new era of peace and justice."

"That gain," he said, "can well include a greater material prosperity if we take care that it is a prosperity for a hundred and twenty million human beings and not a prosperity for the top of pyramid alone."

"If I were asked to state the great objective which church and state are both demanding for the sake of every man and woman and child in this country, I would say that that great objective is a more abundant life."

The early Christians challenged the pagan ethics of Greece and of Rome; we are wholly ready to challenge the pagan ethics that are represented in many phases of our boasted modern civilization. We have called on enlightened business judgment, on understanding leadership on intelligent action, to provide a more equitable balance of the abundant life with all elements of the community. . . .

I am honored by the privilege of speaking to the delegated representatives of 25 Christian denominations and churches gathered on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. In this quarter of a century you have considered no individual creed, but at the same time you have

30 NEW PROPOSALS FOR TAXES OFFERED

Estimated Total for Additional Levies Hiked to $270,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Spreading its net to gather more millions in revenue from gambling and property sales or exchanges between members of wealthy families, a house ways and means subcommittee today proposed 30 additional changes in the revenue act to raise an estimated $270,000,000.

Together with yesterday's report which suggested nine major revisions to bring in a calculated $225,000,000, today's recommendations brought to $270,000,000 the estimated total added levies and tax savings proposed.

Chairman Hill, democrat, Washington, of the subcommittee, announced that "new sources" of revenue would not be investigated until the federal budget needs were ascertained and then only if more revenue was found to be needed.

The subcommittee suggested making the new tax law effective on next year's income, the taxes on which are payable in the calendar year 1935. It added, however, that the full committee might desire to make certain features retroactive on this year's income if there were no constitutional bar.

The subcommittee proposed to deny the taking of losses in the case of sales or exchanges of property between members of a family, or between a shareholder and a corporation in which the shareholder owned a majority of the voting stock.

Several transactions of this kind were brought to light in the Senate banking investigation. The subcommittee described them as "for the sole purpose of taking a loss for income tax purposes."

If adopted, the report said such a change would "effectually close this opportunity for tax avoidance."

The term "family" was defined to include brothers and sisters, spouse, ancestors and lineal descendants.

The subcommittee proposed limiting deductions of losses from legal gambling transactions to the extent of the gains, the same as now provided for illegal gambling.

Under the present practice, the report said, "many taxpayers take deductions for gambling losses, but fail to report gambling gains. This limitation will force taxpayers to report their gambling gains if they desire to deduct their gambling losses."

Another recommendation growing out of the Senate inquiry would require corporations to file statements giving information on taxation, and gross business transacted with persons whose gross business exceeds $100,000 a year.

Other Highlights of Report.

Asserting that when business improved the returns from the proposed 30 changes in the two reports "should be greater," today's report added:

"In any event, your subcommittee is of the opinion that if the changes proposed are adopted the income tax burden will be more fairly borne by all taxpayers with very few opportunities of escape therefrom by legal avoidance."

"The sooner all persons pay their full share of income taxes, the sooner some relief in the existing tax burden may be expected."

The subcommittee favored some "moderate form of earned income relief," but refrained from making a recommendation on this until the revenue requirements were known.

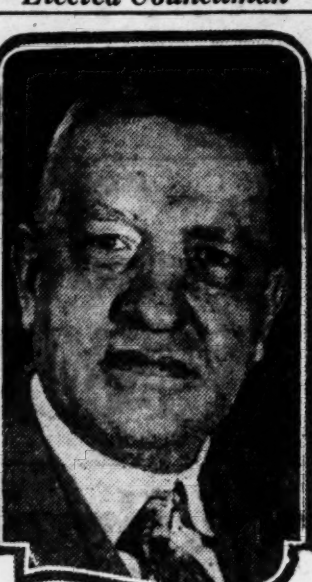

It also advocated a policy of making all future issues of federal obligations subject to surtax, but made no recommendation in the absence of a definite attitude by the treasury.

In this connection the report contained a discussion by L. H. Parker, chief of staff of the joint congressional committee on taxation, in which he said such a change would "restrict the opportunity now existing for the avoidance of this tax."

Much might be said, Parker added, in favor of making the interest on federal, state and local bonds subject to surtaxes but not to normal taxes.

He added there was some possibility that even under existing law interest on government bonds could be reached by an excise tax.

SHIP MAN DISCLOSES PROMOTION EFFORTS

Lykes Representative Tells of Indorsement for Four Officials.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A story of how a representative of several big shipping companies campaigned for the promotion of a number of officials dealing with mail contracts in the postoffice department and shipping board was related today to a Senate investigating committee.

H. B. Arledge, Washington representative of the Lykes Brothers and various other interests, including the Waterman, South Atlantic, Seatrium, Dixie and other shipping companies, testified to preparing at least one memorandum which was identical to a recommendation signed by former Postmaster-General Brown.

On questioning by Chairman Hatch, democrat, Alabama, during consideration of the Tampa Intercoastal Steamship Company's Lykes contract, Arledge said he asked senators and representatives to support E. R. White, in charge of foreign mail, for second assistant postmaster-general, who has supervision of mail contracts.

He told the committee he also obtained endorsements for Commissioners E. C. Plummer, now dead, and R. K. Smith of the shipping board, and waged a campaign among congressmen and shipping officials for promotion of J. Caldwell Jenkins in 1930 from vice president to president of the Merchant Fleet Corporation.

He said in each instance his interest was prompted by belief they were men qualified to do the job, but agreed that he opposed another possible candidate for the postoffice place because of fear that he would be unfriendly to foreign mail contracts.

ROOSEVELT ASKS MORE EFFECTIVE CRIMINAL JUSTICE

been creating a much-needed union that seeks to better the social and moral conditions of all the people of America.

During a quarter of a century more greatly controlled by the spirit of conquest and greed than any similar period since the American and the French revolutions you have survived. You have grown up through to the threshold of a new era in which your churches and the other churches—Gentile and Jew—recognize and stand ready to lead in a new war of peace—the war for social justice.

Born in Era of Classes.

Christianity was born in and of an era notable for the great split that separated the privileged from the underprivileged of the world of two thousand years ago—an era of class distinctions, of conquest and conquest; between warring philosophies based on the theories of logicians rather than on practical life. The early churches were united in a social ideal.

Although through all the centuries we have had many periods of civilization has slipped a step backward, yet I am confident that over the sum of the centuries we have gained many steps for every one we have lost.

Now, once more, we are embarking on another voyage into the realm of human contacts. That human agency which we call government is seeking through social and economic means the same goal which the churches are seeking through social and spiritual means.

If I were asked to state the great objective which church and state are both demanding for the sake of every man, woman and child in this country, I would say that that great objective is "a more abundant life."

Ready To Challenge.

The early Christians challenged the pagan ethics of Greece and Rome; we are wholly ready to challenge the pagan ethics that are represented in many phases of our boasted modern civilization. We have called on enlightened business judgment, on understanding labor and on intelligent agriculture to provide a more equitable life for the abundant life between all elements of the community.

We recognize the right of the individual to seek to obtain his own fair wage, his own fair profit, in his own fair way—just so long as in the doing of it he shall not push down nor hold down his own neighbor. And at the same time we are at one in calling for collective effort on broad lines of social planning—a collective effort which is wholly in accord with the social teachings of Christianity.

This new generation of ours stands ready to help us. They may not be as ready as were their fathers and mothers to accept the old requirements or even many of the ancient observances of the several churches, yet I truly believe that these same churches can find in them a stronger support for the fundamentals of social betterment than many of the older generation are willing to concede.

Action Wanted.

This younger generation is not satisfied with the exposure of those in high places who seek to line their own nests with other people's money; to cheat their government of its just dues or to break the spirit of the law while observing its legalistic letter. This new generation seeks action—action by collective government and by individual education, toward the ending of practices such as these.

This new generation, for example, is not content with preaching that the vile form of collective murder—lynch law—which has broken out in our midst anew. We know that it is murder, and a deliberate and deliberate disobedience of the commandment, "Thou shalt not kill." We do not excuse those in high places or in low who condone lynch law.

But a thinking America goes further. It seeks a government of its own that will be sufficiently strong to protect the prisoner and at the same time to crystallize public opinion so clear that government officials will be compelled to practice a more certain justice. The judicial function of government is the protection of the individual and the community through quick and certain justice. That function in many places has fallen into a state of disrepair. It must be a part of our program to re-establish it.

See Great Gain.

From the bottom of my heart I believe that this beloved country of ours is entering upon a time of great gain. That gain can well include a greater material prosperity for the take care that it is a prosperity for a hundred and twenty million human beings and not a prosperity for the few. It is a prosperity that can be a prosperity for all. It can be a prosperity built on spiritual and social values rather than on special privilege and special power.

Toward that new definition of prosperity the churches and the governments, while wholly separate in their functioning, can work hand in hand. Government can ask the churches to stress in their teaching the ideals of social justice, while at

DORSEY NAMED AUDITOR IN FIRE INSURANCE SUIT

Cam Dorsey, well-known Atlanta lawyer, Wednesday was appointed auditor in the suit of A. L. McDonald versus the Atlanta Association of Fire Insurance Agents. A preliminary hearing on the case will be held Friday afternoon.

McDonald is suing the association, naming about 30 defendants, for appointing him as auditor on charges that the association conspired to destroy the business of his concern, the A. L. McDonald Fire Insurance Agency, by boycotting him and refusing to allow him membership in the association.

His suit, filed in 1932, alleges that the fire insurance agents sought to ruin his firm because he was engaged in mutual fire insurance and that he stock fire insurance.

Dorsey will hear testimony and will report to the March, 1934, term of court. He was appointed by Judge John D. Humphreys.

Members of the committee are: F. W. said the two men would have "something of interest to say to every ex-service man."

The special group to be formed as honor committee will be made up of former marines and sailors and the parents of men who died during the World War. In addition to service and former service men, the general public is invited to attend the speeches.

3 NAMED TO ARBITRATE GERMAN CHURCH TILT

BERLIN, Dec. 6.—(AP)—With a view to smoothing the growing strife within the German Protestant church, an arbitration commission of three was appointed today.

The German Christian, the Nazi faction, has obtained control of the church government, is represented on the commission by Pastor Gustav Heidenreich.

The second member is Gerhard Jacob, who will be the spokesman for the followers of the Rev. Friedrich Von Bodelschwingh, deposed several weeks ago from the position of Reichsbischof by the German Christians.

The third member is a layman, a Chief Ecclesiastical Counselor Ewers was named chairman.

the same time government guarantees to the churches—Gentile and Jew—the right to worship God in their own way. The churches, while they remain wholly free from even the suggestion of interference in government, can at the same time teach their millions of followers that they have the right to demand of the government of their country the maintenance of law and furberance of a "more abundant life." State and church are rightly united in a common aim. With the help of God, we are on the road toward it.

GOVERNOR ROLPH SILENT ON PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—(UP)—Governor James Rolph tonight withheld comment on the speech of President Roosevelt condemning lawlessness, "until I have time to think it over."

"I have the profoundest respect for the president and all that he says," Governor Rolph told the United Press. "I do not feel, however, that I have had sufficient opportunity to digest his remarks to qualify me to comment upon them. After I have read the speech in full I may have something to say."

"I have no desire to start a controversy with our president, for I hold him in too high esteem and respect."

"Undoubtedly we cannot all think the same, but I know that anything President Roosevelt has said comes from his heart after the deepest consideration."

HEWES MAY RESIGN TREASURY POSITION

Officials Believe Order of Morgenthau Will Cause Assistant To Quit.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—An order by acting Secretary Morgenthau removing the internal revenue bureau from the authority of Assistant Secretary Thomas Hewes has created a breach at the treasury which some officials believe may lead to Hewes' resignation.

Only the personal intervention of President Roosevelt was regarded by treasury officials as offering an opportunity for renewed harmony. Even then, some believed, it was doubtful Hewes would remain with the treasury's greatest bureau removed from his command.

Morgenthau's order instructed the internal revenue board to report hereafter to the secretary of the treasury. This would mean to him as acting secretary.

Since this ruling, it was reported that Morgenthau was contemplating a second order which would remove the secret service from Hewes' supervision.

Herbert Gaston, assistant to Morgenthau, who was brought to the treasury general credit administration, told reporters the internal revenue order was issued to enable Morgenthau to become more "familiar with each bureau."

Hewes declined to comment when approached with the report he might resign. He refused also to discuss Morgenthau's order, but admitted that he would remain in the treasury except upon Mr. Roosevelt's personal request.

FIRST WITNESSES FOR BOYKIN, McRAE TAKE STAND TODAY

changed, arguing that the answers to such interrogatories would have a bearing on the credibility of the witnesses.

Stephens Allowed to Remain.

A brief but hotly contested and futile effort was made by McRae's attorneys to have Ed Stephens, assistant solicitor-general, excluded from the courtroom following his testimony in identification of certain documents introduced in evidence by Mr. Boykin.

Stephens, however, was permitted to remain in the courtroom, but was not allowed to testify. He was, however, considered it unlikely that he would remain in the courtroom except upon Mr. Roosevelt's personal request.

Stephens Quizzed on Trips.

In cross-examining Stephens, Attorney Finch asked the assistant solicitor-general if he had made certain trips to Miami, Washington and New York for the purpose of taking depositions of Boykin's witnesses.

Stephens replied that he had made such trips, Finch asked the witness if his salary had been paid during that time by Fulton county. Stephens replied that his salary had been paid as usual during the case, during the entire term of his 22 years of service in the solicitor-general's office.

By way of repartee, Attorney Smith countered with a question to Stephens as to whether his salary had been paid when he had gone on hunting or fishing trips, to which Stephens replied in a negative.

Wednesday morning was occupied with presentation of the sides to the jury, and in his exposition Finch read into the record as an exhibit to his summer the sensational charges upon which Boykin's suit is based, reading at length to the jury from McRae's campaign paper, "More Light and Truth," in which Boykin was charged with bribe-taking in connection with the Art Young transaction; lobbying in connection with alleged efforts to obtain legislative opposition to bills introduced in the general assembly by McRae, which McRae contends were introduced to cut expenses of Fulton county and included a proposed reduction in the salary of the solicitor-general; alleged alliance with Bert Donaldson to line their pockets with "ill-gotten gains"; an alleged "frame" against Jack Lance for the murder of Donaldson; and sundry other charges.

"Frame Up" Charge.

Referring to the charge of "frame-up" in the case of Jack Lance, Finch told the jury that he would show that Boykin paid witnesses to testify against Lance and that Boykin had investigators to search the city for prospective jurors who would be willing to send Lance to the electric chair. Attorney Smith, disclaiming knowledge as to what may constitute a "frame-up" charge.

MILLS SEES GOLD PLAN AS INFLATION THREAT

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Ogden Mills declared tonight the monetary policies of President Roosevelt "involve the threat of uncontrolled inflation."

Assailing the administration program at a dinner in his honor given by the Women's National Republican Club, Mills said that in steps taken to raise the price structure "the implication is always present that when moderate measure fail, extreme ones may be attempted."

The former secretary of the treasury, frequently mentioned as a possible republican presidential choice in 1936, declared "it can fairly be said that the unequal rise in prices in the domestic market is no greater than would normally have been expected to accompany a gradual emergence from the extreme bottom of a major depression."

Stressing the importance of bank credit in our financial life, Mills said: "Any attempt to affect the price level through monetary action which creates distrust and uncertainty will be restricted and may be nullified by limiting the normal creation of commercial credit—the mainspring of which is confidence."

"Monetary manipulation engenders a lack of confidence and the very measures intended to promote a credit expansion and a rise in prices counteract the moment of birth the seeds of their destruction."

Clevelanders Take Auction Title As Protests Fly in Cincinnati Play

CINCINNATI, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Maurice Maschke, former Cleveland political leader, and G. W. Parratt, also of Cleveland, won the last auction pair championship of the American Bridge League today in a session that ended in a cloud of protests.

The Cleveland pair scored 189 match points in two days of play to become the only team to defeat P. Hal Sims and Waldemar von Zedtwitz for the title. They won by a margin of 10 points over the noted second-place pair.

Meanwhile, a strong home-town team came to the front to win the women's contract team-of-four championship by taking 16 boards out of 24 played. Making up the team were Mrs. Greene Kenley Jr., Mrs. Richard P. Field, Mrs. Charlton Wallace, and Mrs. John W. Friedlander.

A stormy session of the bridge league executive committee followed the close play in the auction pair event. Officially, members of the committee refused to reveal what protests had been made. It was learned, however, that one complaint involved allegedly ungentlemanly conduct, and that a reprimand to the alleged offender was agreed on. No hint of the actual play was disclosed.

By winning today, Maschke and Parratt won permanent possession of the R. R. Richards trophy. They have led the auction pair field in the last three tournaments. Officials said today's was the last auction bridge championship the league will sponsor, so rapidly has auction fallen from favor.

Leading at the close of the first round Monday, Maschke and Parratt had little difficulty holding their own. Sims and von Zedtwitz, however,

MRS. KEMP OFFERS TO CANCEL VICTORY

Proposes Holding of Primary "To Restore Peace in District."

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Governor O. K. Allen informed leaders of rebelling citizens in Louisiana's sixth congressional district tonight that he was willing to call another election for April 15, if Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp Sr. would resign the seat in congress which she won in yesterday's tumultuous election. Mrs. Kemp had previously offered to resign, to placate the aroused citizens in her home district.

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 6.—(AP) A motherly, soft-spoken woman past middle age, who never made a public speech in her life, today threw her lot into the contest for the seat in congress for the post would be given an equal footing on the ticket.

In a surprise statement which left her friends and foes alike stunned with amazement, Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp, put up and elected as "the unopposed nominee" by the state administration and Senator Huey P. Long, said she acted to restore peace in her district, scene of riotous anti-administration demonstrations for the past eight days.

"I find myself, through no fault of my own, engaged in a factional campaign," said Mrs. Kemp, widow of the late sixth district representative who died six months ago. And so in opposition to the judgment and wishes of my political advisers, and in spirit of compromise to the end that we may have peace, I have submitted a proposition which I pray may be accepted."

The proposition, briefly, was that she would resign from the congress seat to which the administration declared she was elected yesterday, on condition that the protesting citizens of her district could in turn cancel plans for holding "a citizens' popular election" for congress on December 27. Then she proposed that all candidates for the sixth district seat should go into the race together through the routine procedure of elimination primaries and a general election.

Long, Allen Silent on Action. Both Senator Long, who threw the full support of his political organization behind her candidacy, and Governor O. K. Allen, who called yesterday's sudden election without allowing time for a primary, denied themselves to interview after Mrs. Kemp's statement, which Mrs. Kemp made clear was issued on her own initiative.

State authorities, however, continued to compile yesterday's vote for the district with indications that only about 5,000 persons had voted on the ticket which contained only the name of Mrs. Kemp. All of the district did not participate in the election, but the 5,000 votes were cast in an area with a normal voting strength of more than 45,000.

As Mrs. Kemp offered her compromise from the home of her son in New Orleans, the sixth district citizens election committee, which headed the Kemp election procedure as illegal, made a new demand on Governor Allen for the calling of a regular election which would allow time for primaries and an opportunity for candidates to run.

The committee, referring to yesterday's procedure as a "fake election," said they had "challenged the governor to give the voters of the district the opportunity to choose a representative."

The committee said that if the governor failed to act, they would proceed with the December 27 "citizens' election," in which all candidates, including Mrs. Kemp, were invited to run and were promised "a fair count of the ballots."

Four Candidates Rejected. Mrs. Kemp, a quiet "homebody," was suddenly made the center of a bitter factional dispute a week ago when Governor Allen, who had allowed the sixth district congress seat to remain vacant for six months, suddenly called a special election for December 5, as his proclamation allowed no time for a primary, the Long-controlled district democratic committee met immediately and named Mrs. Kemp as "the unopposed nominee" of party, thus throwing four anti-administration candidates out of the running.

Protesting demonstrations swept the district, climaxed by effigy-burning and seizure and destruction of ballots and ballot boxes. Anti-administrations called on the voters to stay away from the polls and await the "citizens' election" on December 27.

During the turmoil, Mrs. Kemp stayed quietly at her son's residence in New Orleans or in her luxurious country home at Amite, indulging in her favorite hobbies of reading novels and writing lengthy letters to friends. Friends describe her as "a likeable, sweet-looking person, and a star-at-home." One of her favorite summer pastimes is bathing in a lake creek that slips along in the shadows behind her big house.

SENATOR LONG DENIES HAVING AID OF BANKER

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long today denied that C. S. McCain, chairman of the board of the Chase National bank, had "given any assistance to the fight made by myself and several other senators against the Glass banking bill in the early part of the year."

The statement was in reply to charges by Senator Carter Glass, democrat, Virginia, at the senate banking inquiry yesterday in Washington that McCain had been in constant communication with Senator Long during the fight against the banking bill.

"I am most certain that the things in the Glass bill which I wanted were not wanted by Mr. McCain and that the things in the bill which Mr. McCain wanted were things which I did not want," the senator said.

SUIT ACCUSES LONG OF MISMANAGING PRESERVE
BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 6.—(AP) A new suit to revoke the 72,000-acre Mowbray island coastal game preserve grant to the state of Louisiana because of alleged violation of the donation agreement for political purposes during the Huey P. Long governorship administration was filed today in East Baton Rouge district court.

The suit, brought against State Conservation Commissioner Robert S. Maestre, charged that the donation agreement of November 8, 1929, between the Russell Sage Foundation and the state during the administration of Governor John M. Parker had been violated during the 1930-31 open season by an agreement between the state and certain persons in which the trapping proceeds were "parceled out and distributed among political agents for their benefit and profit."

The proceeds allegedly distributed are claimed to have exceeded $20,000.

BAPTISTS TO MEET AT ALBANY IN 1934

Executive Committee Also Re-elects Wilkinson and Merritt.

J. C. Wilkinson, pastor of the Athens First Baptist church was selected to continue as presiding officer of the Georgia Baptist convention and Albany was chosen as the 1934 convention city at its executive committee meeting here, it was announced Wednesday. The session also saw the re-election of James W. Merritt as executive secretary-treasurer.

The Albany invitation was presented by Dr. W. Raleigh White, pastor of the First Baptist church of that city and a member of the executive committee. The convention, which is 112 years old, has previously met in Albany only one time, in the year 1887.

This marks the beginning of Mr. Merritt's fifth consecutive year as the chief executive officer of the Georgia Baptist convention. Dr. O. P. Gilbert was re-elected editor and manager of The Christian Index, the organ of the convention. In adopting a state mission budget and perfecting plans for the operation of this phase of the convention's work during 1934, the committee re-elected the following department heads: George W. Andrews, Sunday schools; Edwin S. Preston, Baptist Young People's Union, and D. B. Nicholson, Baptist student work.

An unexpected feature of the meeting was a request from President Aquila Chamblee, of Bessie Tift College, Forsyth, for the approval of a plan which he presented in the name of the executive committee of the board of trustees of the college for the release of the institution from the co-operative program of the denomination. The principal terms of the proposal are that the college agree to surrender to the convention for cancellation $395,932.96 in interest-bearing debentures issued in 1929 by the convention to Bessie Tift to increase its endowment. The college also agrees to waive its claim to the convention's budget appropriation of $5,000 for 1934 and to budget appropriations in future years. In consideration of these concessions the college asks that Bessie Tift be granted the right to make independent appeals outside of the co-operative program to churches and individuals for gifts for both current support and endowment. The committee approved the plan.

It is proposed that the new plan be operative until the next meeting of the convention in November, 1934, and if approved by the body at that time to be a permanent arrangement. Although proposing to secure its financial support outside the convention, the college asks that the convention approve the plan.

Plans for the public showing of the new Ford model will be announced as soon as they are completed, Mr. Bottom said.

Mr. Bottom, assisted by E. L. Hicks, assistant branch manager, and P. A. Boykin, sales manager, will be in charge of today's meeting which will start promptly at noon.

Old Age Pension Voted By Pennsylvania House

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Humanitarian measures designed to block the road leading "over the hill" to the poor house were passed unanimously today by the house and sent to the senate.

Repealing Governor Flinch's plea for speedy action on social welfare legislation, the house approved measures that would dip $8,000,000 from the state's liquor revenue for pensions to the aged poor.

The senate approved two bills providing for payment of $50,000,000 in bonuses to the state's war veterans. A few minutes later the house concurred in minor changes and the measures were laid on the governor's desk. The bonus was authorized by the voters November 7.

The executive committee completed its organization by electing B. H. Hardy, a layman of Barnesville, vice president, and H. D. Warnock, pastor of the First Baptist church, Forsyth, recording secretary. The following committee on administration was named: W. H. Major, W. A. Dunham, Carlton W. Blinn, T. E. Gibson, Bunyan Stephens, Roland Q. Leavell and W. Lee Cutts. The commission, to which is committed the operation of the Georgia Baptist hospital, includes Bryant Knight, Wiley Moore, I. M. Sheffield, W. H. Major, and James W. Merritt. Named on the board of directors of The Christian Index are: J. C. Wilkinson, B. H. Hardy, J. E. Sammons, W. H. Knight and W. H. Major.

Besides these the executive committee named other subcommittees on missions, benevolence, education, student work, ministerial education and promotion.

Justice Department Asked To Take Action; Trade Group Also Aids.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—NRA today widened the scope of its campaign for code compliance in industry, calling for the first time upon both the federal trade commission and the department of justice as active aids in enforcement work.

To the department of justice it cited two bituminous coal mine operators from Missouri and Iowa for prosecution, if the evidence warrants, on charges of willful code violation by charging prices and paying wages below those required.

While NRA summoned to public investigation next Monday a New York group charged with encouraging dry cleaners to violate minimum prices established under their code, the trade commission announced that in San Antonio, Texas, one of its agents had secured compliance from an ice manufacturer found to be engaged in forbidden trade practices.

From this time on, the trade commission was said to be expected to play an increasingly important part in investigating and correcting code violations.

Mode of Procedure. Chairman March, of the commission told reporters that the procedure would be to have an investigator step in after local NRA representatives failed to secure adjustment. An effort at conciliatory solution would then be undertaken, followed, if necessary, by public hearing and an order to desist from the practices complained of. Enforcement of this order would be up to the courts and federal prosecuting officials.

Other enforcement steps today included: Three blue eagles were ordered.

EUROPE STUDYING NEW LEAGUE PLAN

Reorganization Contemplated in Hope of Attracting United States.

ROME, Dec. 6.—(P)—A new program which would radically reorganize the League of Nations in the hope it may attract within its doors the United States and other world powers has been launched, the Associated Press learned today.

The movement is under discussion in several European capitals, it was disclosed. Its sponsors desire Russia, Japan and Germany to come into the League, as well as the United States. Italy has not yet formulated definite formal proposals, however, but she wants to erase existing League articles which bind signatories to use military and economic forces to preserve boundaries created by the Versailles treaty.

By this means it is hoped to remove the principal obstacle to United States membership.

This developed following last night's decision of the fascist grand council to demand that the League be sweeping reformed or be faced by Italy's withdrawal.

The Italian press today lauded the council's action, hailing its ability "to view international forces with Mussolinian clarity and attention to realities."

An Associated Press dispatch from London said it was learned that Great Britain held questions of disarmament should supersede consideration of League reformation.

Under the proposed reform of Geneva, a "League within the League" might be formed of the United States, Russia, Germany, Japan and possibly Poland and Spain or one or two others.

This form, supporters believe, would make membership more attractive to the powers without.

The world would be divided into three spheres of influence, under the move, with large nations in dominance.

Europe would be influenced by England, France, Italy and Germany. The Asiatic countries would be dominated by Russia and Japan.

The Americas would be influenced by the United States.

Articles 10, 11, 12, 13 and 16 of the League covenant, which guarantee preservation of boundaries made at Versailles and for force to resist aggression would be wiped out by the program.

At the United States insisted it did not wish to be involved in affairs of Europe, these articles formed a basis of its refusal to come into the League, fathered by Woodrow Wilson.

Buys First Box for Ball

Clark Howell, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, is shown buying the first box for the Charity Ball at $25. Lt. Harry J. Wheaton is accepting the check. There will be only 20 boxes of eight seats each for the Charity Ball and orders are being taken at 137 Peachtree Arcade. Santa Claus in person will lead the grand march and there will be many city and state officials in the receiving line. Invitations for the big event have been sent to the governors of surrounding states and every cent derived from the Charity Ball will be devoted to baskets of food for the poor at Christmas time. Letters to Santa Claus

Children Writing Best 50 Letters Will Ride in Parade and Get Toy Out of Santa's Sack.

Prince of Love, the messenger sent from here to invite Santa Claus to this city, wants the children to know that he has visited and inspected Santa's workshop. Santa's workers are busy night and day making all kinds of toys and presents for Christmas. There are gingerbreads and chocolate drops, candy sticks and peanut crops, tiny toys and big-eyed dolls in bright blue coats, silks for sister, smiles for mother, gold for auntie, laughs for dad, things to make the sad and brighter and cheer up all on Christmas night. Yes it must be wonderful in Santa's workshop, and as the Prince of Love says, there are not only toys and sweets to gladden the hearts of little children but there are also all manner of worth-while things for brother, mother, sister, father, auntie, grandpa and all.

Fine Christmas Gifts.
Clothing, furniture, radios, electric refrigerators, table silverware, dressing table vanities, automobile accessories, books, leather goods, linens, silks and an endless list of things can be mentioned which make excellent Christmas gifts and the stores of Atlanta are well prepared to suit every idea and every taste.

The coming of Santa Claus on Friday, December 15, can be made something more than a passing excitement—it can be made beneficial for Atlanta and its people. Tomorrow will bring more news about the event.

And here are the letters from the five children selected by Santa Claus today to ride in the parade with him and get a toy right out of his sack. The five who wrote the first five letters will be taken to when and where to be so that they can get a choice seat in the bus with Santa.

The first is from Jacquelin Paulk and she writes:

Ocella, Ga., Dec. 3, 1933.
Dear Santa: I will be six years old next Saturday and am in the first grade. I have been on the home roll every time. My daddy and mother say I am nice and smart, that they will take me to Atlanta December 15 to see you. Well, you can count on seeing me for I am sure going to be nice. I am sure I would be the happiest little girl in all the world if I could ride in your parade and just wait until I get that wish in your ear just what I want you to bring.

I love you,
JACQUELIN PAULK.

Here is a letter from twin boys who have been chosen to ride in the parade with Santa:

Atlanta, Ga., 536 Clifton Rd., N. E.

Dear Santa Claus: We are little twin brothers five years old. We weigh almost the same, one-half pound difference, we are the same height and so much alike no one except mother knows us apart. I wonder if you will know us when we see you, we are counting the days until December 15 to see you. Please bring us a ship with you on it, one for each of us. Please don't forget the children who do not have mothers and daddies good like ours. We want to ride with you very much.

I love you, Santa,
BOBBY AND BILLY MATHIS.

Jaquelin Ramsay is another of the little children selected to ride with Santa in the "Santa Claus" parade.

Dear Santa Claus: I have a special reason for asking you to honor me by allowing me to ride with you in the "Big Parade" Friday night, December 15. You see I will be 8 years old Saturday, December 16, and this would be a double celebration for me if you will be so kind Dear Santa. Here is what I want for Christmas, some skates and a desk and two pairs of doll clothes; and I have a baby sister; please let me get a toy out of the bag for her.

JACQUELIN RAMSAY,
608 St. Charles Ave., N. E.

The fifth child chosen today is Virginia Langston.

Dear Santa: I am a curly-haired, blue-eyed little girl of almost four years. I guess you remember that you brought me to mother for Christmas in 1929. Please bring me a tricycle and a doll carriage for Christmas. I will leave you a whisk broom so you can dust the soot off your clothes after you come down our chimney and will leave you some cake in the living room as I know you will be hungry after driving so far. My fifth grade brother is writing this for me as I am not old enough yet to go to school. Don't forget my brother and sister and all the poor children. Please bring them something nice and if you have a doll left over you might bring it to me as I like lots of babies. Hope I see you soon, Santa.

Your little friend,
VIRGINIA LANGSTON,
817 Tift Ave., S. W.

And here are several more letters received in today's mail:

Dear Santa Claus: I have been wondering if your hair needs cutting or if your whiskers need trimming, if so you can tell my daddy and he will cut your hair free because he is a barber. You see, I want you to look nice in the parade December 15. I have taken real good care of my doll you brought me last year, so I want you to bring me a carriage so I can ride it. Bring me a pretty dress, an where police held back the excited, happy crowds.

The flying Americans went to the home of the British consul, where they were to be entertained.

The South Atlantic flight, as was the previous flight across the North Atlantic, was part of the survey work the Lindberghs are carrying on for Pan-American Airways, for which the colonel is technical adviser. The 75 wireless stations of the American International Air Line, which direct its passenger and mail planes on their South Atlantic flights, kept a close watch for signals from the Lindbergh plane.

At the time for the landing drew near, all radio communication between the airways stations was silenced and the news of the landing was reported through an ether cleared of other wireless messages directly to Miami, whence it was relayed to New York.

At the wireless instrument, keeping in close communication with Rio de Janeiro through the long flight, sat Mrs. Lindbergh. The skill with which she operated the key was commented on by the veteran experts who listened in on her signals.

ATLANTA, GA., DEC. 7, 1933.

OUR CHRISTMAS CARNIVAL.

The old-time Christmas spirit, dimmed in recent years by reason of the depressing effect of economic conditions and other causes which have led to a less general and intense participation in the holiday season, will be fanned to its former brightness this year by the program of events arranged by The Constitution and leading civic organizations which are co-operating to make this Christmas surpass any former one, not only in its joyousness but in the gifts to the poor of the city.

From the oldest to the youngest and in homes of wealth and poverty as well, the various features of the program will stir anew the spirit of "Peace on earth, good will among men."

The three-day period in which joy-making will be given free rein and the city's greatest contribution to the holiday season happiness of those in distressed or humble conditions will be affected, will be launched Friday night, the 15th, with a parade which in its unique qualities, joyous demonstration and wholehearted participation by every class of the people of the city will surpass any previous celebration of its kind.

This parade, combining the features of Mardi Gras and Christmas, will bring joy to every tiny heart and be an interesting spectacle to the grown-ups. It will be followed immediately by Atlanta's first Christmas charity ball at which the city's greatest gathering of dancers will make merry until the wee small hours.

In both of these events the governor, the mayor and the heads of the leading organizations will play an active part, as will the membership of the American Legion and the other co-operating organizations.

On Sunday the Big Brothers' organization, formed during the past two weeks, will carry to every home in Atlanta copies of the Big Brother edition of The Constitution, the receipts from which will go to the fund for the Christmas baskets to be left at every needy home in the city on Christmas morning.

There is in this unusual Christmas program of civic events a world of joy to be found by every Atlantian. The Big Brother movement is featured in the Christmas celebrations of some cities, while in others the Christmas charity ball is the big event. In Atlanta this Christmas both will be presented, with the added attraction of the parade which will turn the downtown streets into a fairy land of lights under which hobgoblin figures will march and dance.

Every citizen of Atlanta should do his or her part towards making each event a success. If they do they will bring joy to themselves and happiness to others on this Christmas season when the hearts of all are rejoicing over the advent of "better times."

Moore to head chamber.
The selection of Wiley L. Moore as president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce will place the activities of that important civic institution during the coming years under the direction of one of the city's ablest business executives.

His service to the chamber is in keeping with his record of sustained interest in every movement looking to the advancement of Atlanta. During his several terms in city council he proved one of the most active and valuable members of the legislative branch of the municipal government, and performed outstanding service as the head of the finance committee.

For several years prior to his becoming chairman of this committee the city had steadily gotten deeper and deeper into debt. Under his determined leadership the city stopped spending more than its revenues and it was placed on an even financial keel at a time when its credit was on the verge of collapse.

Mr. Moore was an active member of the Forward Atlanta committee and has earnestly co-operated in every movement for the improvement of the city during his residence in Atlanta.

He assumes direction of the chamber at a time when the city's welfare demands that it be conducted in a live and virile way. With business and industry beginning to spread out again after four years of depression, the city that does not have an energetic chamber of commerce will lose out in competition with other municipalities. The business interests of Atlanta can rest assured that under the leadership of Mr. Moore no possible opportunity to benefit commercial and industrial conditions here will be overlooked.

The retiring president of the chamber, Herbert E. Choate, has performed a difficult task in a manner which places him among the most successful heads in the chamber's existence. Taking office when, as a result of the depression, the organization had lost many members and much of its revenue, he has revitalized it and made it the leader in the forces co-operating in this community with the federal recovery program.

KEEPING STEP WITH PROGRESS.

Announcement is made that the Orange Blossom Special, famous Florida train operated by the Pennsylvania and Seaboard Air Line railways from New York to Florida, will in future be air-conditioned throughout and that every possible step will be taken to add to the convenience and comfort of passengers.

The trip from New York to Florida will constitute the longest distance in the world traveled by a completely air-conditioned train—a process which means the complete elimination of dirt, dust and smoke and a material reduction in noise. The air in the cars will be changed every few minutes and, no matter what the temperature may be on the outside, it will remain inside the cars at the correct temperature for health and comfort.

When passengers enter the Orange Blossom Special in New York for a trip to Florida, they will immediately step out of the bleak winter weather of the north into the atmosphere, both as to quality and warmth, of the sun-kissed clime for which they are headed.

Despite the added comforts and conveniences of this famous train, the speed of which has been stepped up, there will be no extra fare or surcharges, but, on the contrary, sweeping reductions have been made on both one-way and round-trip tickets.

It is by the adoption of such methods of competition that the railroads can successfully meet the challenge of new types of transportation. None of these competitors can offer the maximum of comfort, safety and convenience that the railroads can.

The railroads have not kept pace with modern developments and the modern trend in transportation and they have, as to have been expected, lost patronage to competitors.

Marked progress has been made during the past decade or so in the comforts of the home, office and factory—but most of the railroads continue to offer the same equipment they used before the war. Speed has been increased on water and highway and in the air, but the rails transport their passengers no faster than they did 25 years ago.

The way out of the trouble of the railroads lies in the adoption by them of modern methods, and the Seaboard management is to be congratulated upon its last step.

Others must follow its lead.

Utopia must be the place where no one ever has a winter cold.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

DISCORD WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—As soon as Mr. Roosevelt gets one quarrel in his official family straightened out, another breaks out.

The latest is in the Tennessee Valley Authority. He will be surprised to hear that his quiet group of boys down there are not getting along any too well. They have kept their real deal side show very much to themselves. No loud talking is permitted until the doors are locked and the transom shut.

Nevertheless the discordant sounds emanating from within clearly indicate that papa is going to have to bring down a switch or a pacifier very soon.

TRIPLE SPLIT

Underneath it seems that Arthur Morgan and Harcourt Morgan are unable to see eye-to-eye. The associates of Arthur Morgan say he favors a strong federal approach to the problem. For instance, he wants the soil erosion protective measures taken by the federal government. That is logical, in an interstate project.

Harcourt Morgan is pictured by his friends as a states' rights man. They want to turn as much soil protection as possible over to the states.

The third director, David Lillenthal, sits in the middle twiddling his thumbs. He votes first with one Morgan and then with the other. His prime interest in life is to shoot bent pins at the power companies. His aim has been perfect so far.

POLITICS The matter of patronage is more serious. The Nor-regard in making appointments. The power companies said he has not been entirely successful.

One engineer who passed a civil service examination was amazed to find those with lower marks getting jobs ahead of him. He inquired about it among his friends and was told that if he wanted a job he had better get a recommendation from his democratic county chairman. He could not do that because he was registered as a republican. He has a wife and five children on the relief roll.

On the other side of the question, a certain southern senator has his ire up because Arthur Morgan will not appoint his men.

POWER

Director Lillenthal was supposed to have been privately disowned by the administration when he made that first speech offering a sharply lower rate scale to the power companies.

The whisper was officially passed around that he spoke for himself alone on that proposition. The power companies said he was absurd.

A few weeks later he went to Atlanta and made a stronger speech. He said the TVA meant the beginning of a new national power policy and national power program. He stressed two objectives: (a) Radically reduced rates; (b) eventual control of power "by the people."

What the power boys murmured about that might just as well be left unsaid.

The fact seems to be that Lillenthal represents the Roosevelt view to a far greater degree than the power people suspect.

PATRONAGE

Those who have made an impartial inside study of the general patronage situation say the administration is generally playing the game squarely.

They insist that Morgenthau, Ickes, Wallace and Perkins among the cabinet members are sticklers for civil service requirements on lower class jobs. They are giving their friends and political allies the cream, which is to be expected.

Some of the other cabinet officials accept the civil service rules generally, but stretch them considerably to take in political friends. That is not hard to do.

Where the political gravy flows freely is in the emergency relief agencies and new commissions.

MODESTY

There is an exception to the cabinet patronage attitude—State Secretary Hull. He has asked for very little.

The first request he made for a job was months after he took office. He wanted the Finland post for a newspaper friend. It so happened that General Farley's right-hand man, Emil Hurja, also wanted that job.

Modesty is such an unusual virtue in politics that the president did not have the heart to turn down Hull. So Hurja remained where he is of more assistance to Farley than he would be in Finland.

NOTES

The politicians also gnawed real meat out of the 1,600 bank examiners appointed under the deposit insurance set-up. Farley is supposed to have obtained less than 20 per cent of the appointments. His associates say he should have had more.

State department insiders say Hull will take the responsibility for the expected failure of the current Pan-American conference, just as he did at London. That is what a state secretary is for.

Certain private individuals are trying to organize a movement to keep the clergy out of politics, of which more may be heard later.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

THE MYSTERY OF LIFE.

Give me a good mystery yarn and I'll be a happy man. The general run of fiction, both classical and woodpile, never troubles me much. I did follow through a yarn of Knut Hamsun's—"Growth of the Soil"—for the sheer fun of it, but I found it too long and too much of a writer's style, and I dipped into one of Arnold Bennett's tales of the "Five Towns" or was it "Three Towns," held for a few chapters by the author's intimate knowledge of the technique of divers professions. But for real entertainment and forgetfulness of worries and troubles give me a mystery story—none of those with a mystery atmosphere and suspense and not too many errors in spelling and syntax.

I like my mystery served as a side dish, and not mixed in with regular literature.

When I was a boy 17 or 18 years old, in my first year in college, I worried a great deal about what I learned only a year or two later was a normal condition. I used to read with great interest the booklets and the newspaper ads of the many quacks who boldly cried that they had discovered the secret of life. All the time I was in college I was a student of the occult. He doesn't get a fair deal.

Acne was another more or less normal condition that gave me many unhappy moments. I knew thousands of girls and girls needlessly unhappy. I wonder why it is that parents then and now prefer to keep up the mystery of life and either hold aloof or actually make efforts to teach the children the truth about things from the beginning.

I suppose it is only natural for us old folk to look upon the thinking youth of the day as fruitfully sophisticated and all that. Well, I see youth in the same light, as a plain citizen. But let me tell you I see youth in another light, in my opinion, is healthy adviser. These well-talking boys and girls today are just acting, trying to be nonchalant. When it comes right down to the heart or soul they are just dumb as ever. Their sophistication is merely an affectation which they get from the movies and the woodpile magazines.

I have a general impression that the original boys 16 years or older, but I am glad to send this letter to any boy of any age who asks for it and encloses a stamped envelope bearing his address. And if the boy writing for this advice and instruction pertaining to sex has a particular question he would like answered privately, he may ask the question. All I insist on is sincerity, and no impersonal or hypothetical questions.

Sorry I can't offer similar service to girls. Tried it out some years ago and the vote from mothers, perhaps a bit behind the times, but mothers of modern daughters, proved adverse and I discontinued the letter for girls.

Life is a mystery enough without any superstitious or meretricious taboos to lead children astray.

BILLION OFFERED IN U. S. SECURITIES TO AID FINANCING

ly $900,000,000, of which some $25,000,000 was in uncallable bonds.

Critics on Alert.
Critics of the administration's monetary policy, especially of the gold buying program, are expected to watch intently the public response today's financing offer. It has been their contention that depreciation of the dollar by foreign gold purchases would make it difficult for the government to borrow. Treasury officials today reiterated their opposite view and expressed confidence the offer would be snapped up with the same promptness that has marked previous treasury financing.

The gold program to all outward appearance seemed stationary today with the quotation on RFO purchases of domestic gold standing at $34.01, where it has rested now for five consecutive days. The London price of gold meanwhile was $32.84, at an exchange quotation of $37.12 to the pound. The dollar grew stronger as the advanced closing in New York at 51.2, and carrying the London gold figure proportionately downward.

During the day, the public works administration announced additional allotments involving $1,182,378 and the civil works administration transmitted to the White House an estimate that it will have put 4,000,000 previously unemployed to work by December 15. The public works announcement reduced still nearer the zero point that agency's total fund of $3,300,000,000. Congress is to be asked for more.

Refinanced Debentures.

In addition to these developments in the administration's campaign for better times, reports were received from the banking field that the farm credit administration announced that 12 federal land banks had lent more than $100,000,000 for refinancing farm indebtedness and saving of mortgage foreclosure. November's total was the biggest for any month yet, $58,352,565.

The office of the comptroller of the currency, J. F. T. O'Connor, came an announcement that on December 1, nearly 61 per cent of all national banks that remained closed after the closing of last March had been "licensed, chartered, absorbed or placed in receivership." The announcement said that of the 1,446 unopened national banks last March, 882 had been thus disposed of.

Of the 564 still unlicensed, the statement said, 377 had had reorganization plans approved, and would reopen when they had carried out their part in these plans, principally raising additional capital.

As usual with such securities, the certificates offered tonight by the treasury and the income from them will be exempt from all taxation, except estate and inheritance levies, and the federal reserve banks, as the agents of the treasury, were authorized to receive subscriptions.

Hollywood in Person

By MOLLIE MERRICK

(Copyright, 1932, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Charlie Ruggles, undoubtedly America's greatest living actor, compares every known qualification for popularity on the screen.

With this brief confession, Mr. Ruggles opened an interview that reveals for the first time some of the startling experiences that the versatile and charming Mr. Ruggles has experienced. Mr. Ruggles was also generous in exposing some of his innermost secrets and hitherto unknown personal characteristics, habits and manner of living.

"I love children," declared the magnetic Ruggles, as he carelessly tossed aside the volume of Nietzsche he was reading, and lit his favorite pipe. "I also love books, cooking, gardening, fishing, hunting, riding, swimming and flowers. In fact," Mr. Ruggles declared, "I love practically everything."

"I live my roles in which I appear off the screen as well as on," Mr. Ruggles stated positively. "I never touch narcotics in any form," he added thoughtfully.

"In all my pictures I appear in a scene that requires what is probably one of the largest and most unusual sets ever constructed for a motion picture."

"When I arrive for work in make-up, the gatekeeper, who is one of my closest friends, never roams the foreign ports of my huge cargo of illegal whisky still unlanded. After 13 years, the famous rum row has dwindled to six ships, the coast guard said."

Bolan, in orders to police to report all speakeasies, outlined an elaborate plan of attack but emphasized that he would have no arrests "on observation," by smelling breaths, and no use of axes to break down doors—a policy of the prohibitionists.

"We want no arrests on observation," said Commissioner Bolan. "We want arrests where liquor is illegally sold. After that, we'll handle the speakeasies."

"Observation arrests frequently result in the discharge of prisoners, and we don't want that. By making arrests on observation, we will drive the bootleggers and speakeasies out of business."

Commissioner Bolan said drastic action would be taken against "smoke joints," where men were to impure alcohol and water is sold to derelicts for a few pennies.

District inspectors will be held responsible for clearing speakeasies out of their territories by Bolan. Uniformed police will make no arrests, confining their activities to reporting suspected places.

Police men will make the arrests.

Retail Stores Besieged.

Hundreds of retail stores, their shelves stocked with hard liquors and wines, were besieged by thirsty New Yorkers as they opened for the day's business. And the steady stream of purchases continued until 8 p. m., when state regulations require the stores to close.

Starting at dawn, heavily loaded trucks rolled from warehouses with the first deliveries for the retail stores, which turned customers away yesterday. The first deliveries had gone to hotels and restaurants running on a limited supply of liquor.

Orderly crowds waited patiently in long lines in the stores—paying prices ranging from $1.25 a pint to $7.25 a quart for the best domestic or imported whisky.

One large wine importer had 200 trucks delivering all day, and expected to deliver 20,000 cases by dawn. Other wine dealers also reported heavy sales.

Edward P. Mulrooney, chairman of the state control board, weary from "quitting at licenses" was on the job early as the board sought to issue retail licenses to reputable proprietors.

In the rush of the first full day of repeal the board issued 500 licenses, 200 of which were to the retail stores. Eventually, the board said, there will be 7,000 licenses for all types of dispensing—2,000 less than before prohibition.

Repeating his warnings to speakeasies operating without licenses, Mulrooney predicted that the board's task snells or tastes like beer, was for the most part proved.

Sheriff M. Gary Whittle, the highest ranking police officer in the county since Georgia has no state police, tonight said the council's action was "deplorable" but indicated he would urge the state house dry law unless some person swore out a warrant.

"I am not a snapper, nor a bearded detective nor a monkey and the next minute a sheriff," Whittle said.

He said: "I think the action of city council is very deplorable. My oath requires me to serve the processes of the courts and I expect to live up to the letter of my oath."

"For the paltry sum of $3,000, they (the council) accepted from the state of Georgia to sell 3.2 beer and now they are going on with the liquor." He added that the Georgia law "never intended that the sheriff should originate a prosecution in such cases. If somebody swears out a warrant, however, I will serve it just like I have served all other warrants. That is the due process of the law and my duty."

Expected opposition to the repeal of prohibition was not to develop until for one letter and all of the debate was between members of council. Only one member spoke against the ordinance. C. Murphy Hargis, Woodward explaining they would not "feel right" in voting to license a business prohibition by the state.

After the 7-7 tie was announced Mayor W. D. Jemison voted against. Councilman S. E. Wall, who had voted against the ordinance, asked for a reconsideration and the second ballot was 7-7.

A letter from W. H. Fleming, former congressman, protested the ordinance and said the council was "conspiring with liquor sellers to defy the state."

It was received as information. President R. Lee Olice, of the civil service commission, who in effect is head of the police and fire departments, said: "No one in Augusta will open up and sell liquor as far as I can help it."

He said his first step would be to confer with the city attorney to see where I stand under the law. He added that while it was his duty to uphold the ordinances of the city, it also was his "sworn duty to support the laws of the state and to question in my mind is which is the highest duty."

Promises of speedy action for repeal of prohibition were made by night by dry leaders when they were informed of the council's action.

Rev. E. C. Sheridan, who heads the Consolidated Forces for prohibition in the Atlanta and Augusta districts, predicted the "strongest sort of opposition" to the measure from the clergy and said they would "go to the fullest extent to see that it does not become effective."

Other dry leaders made similar comment.

INITIAL LIQUOR DUTIES $385,000 AT NEW YORK
NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The first full day of legal liquor brought in $385,000 in duties to the United States custom house at the port of New York.

H. C. Stuart, assistant collector, said that about 90 per cent of this amount was in the form of bonded warehouse spirits in customs bonded warehouses, the duty being collected when the stock was moved out for delivery.

The remainder was "consumption entry"—duties imposed at piers.

CITY COMPANY SUE

ON INVESTMENT LOSSES

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A suit seeking approximately $1,500,000 damages as the result of investment losses, was filed in the federal district court today on behalf of Joseph J. Rend, vice president of the National City Company of New York, Inc., formerly known as the National City Company.

of acting on applications would be completed within 10 days.

Mulrooney said that the "high-class speakeasies" which had been in the restaurant business for over a year, enjoyed a good reputation and complied with the board's regulations would be closed.

New York's drinkers hailed the news from Washington that federal liquor control authorities were prepared to force down the speakeasies. An official said that with the $1.10 a gallon government tax whisky should still sell profitably for about $1.50 a pint.

NEW JERSEY CONFUSED

ON FEATURES OF LAW

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Liquor law features were confused in New Jersey today as a result of the legislature's overriding of Governor A. Harry Moore's veto of the control act, which would have made the constitutional of certain features of the law was questioned.

It was on the grounds of constitutional grounds that the governor disapproved the measure.

D. Frederick Burnett, named control "czar" in the bill, which was in effect asserted by the governor to be unconstitutional because it took from him his appointive prerogative, advised municipal governing boards not to exercise certain powers granted them.

For a period of 11 hours, from the time the eighteenth amendment was repealed, until the state legislature acted early today after an all-night session, the state liquor was dry, but liquor flowed just as freely as it had in the state during prohibition, and as it did today, legally.

By overruling the veto, the legislature saved the regulatory system created by Burnett, under which he licenses all manufacturers and wholesalers, and municipalities license under his regulation retail stores.

The legislature stands adjourned until noon, January 9, when the new legislature is expected to make some changes in the law.

Legal liquor was late in getting a start, and it was not until late today, that it began appearing in licensed places. Manufacturers and wholesalers declined to distribute in this state until they could do so legally.

Meanwhile, municipal boards throughout the state met in regular and special sessions to enact local licensing and control ordinances.

Despite Burnett's advice that they do not exercise the power granted them by the control act to provide by resolution for absolute prohibition or to prohibit sales on Sunday, many municipalities incorporated the latter provision in their ordinances. Burnett said he agreed with Attorney-General William A. Stevens that the delegation of these powers was unconstitutional. Stevens held these questions would be settled by referendum.

ARNOLD DEATHS LAID TO MURDER, SUICIDE

Coroner's Verdict Returned
as Plans for Funerals
Are Completed.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Arnold, found slain Tuesday night in the bedroom of a house at 286 Boulevard, N. E., as the climax of Arnold's alleged bigamy troubles, came to their death at the coroner's verdict at the funeral parlors of Harry G. Poole as arrangements were completed for the funeral.

Services for Mrs. Arnold will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Jackson Hill Baptist church. The Rev. Wilburn N. Smith will officiate. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

Arnold's body was sent Wednesday afternoon to Deveraux, Ga., for funeral services and interment. Both Arnold and Mrs. Annie Pitts Arnold were killed by bullets fired into their heads. A note left by Arnold asked that they be buried together in one grave, and that a few dollars left in his pockets be used to buy flowers. Indictment of Arnold on bigamy charges preceded the tragedy.

According to investigators, Arnold was married to three women, one of them twice. His first marriage was to Miss Lucile Brookins of Hancock county, in Warrenton, in 1928. He married Miss Pitts in Fulton county in 1931 without obtaining a divorce from Mrs. Lucile Brookins Arnold, and later divorced Mrs. Annie Ruth Pitts Arnold, marrying Miss Ray Phillips in Fulton county, May 5, 1932. Then, without obtaining a divorce from Mrs. Ray Phillips Arnold, he remarried Mrs. Annie Ruth Pitts Arnold in DeKalb county on October 9, investigators said.

Revelation of the alleged bigamy came about when Mrs. Annie Ruth Pitts Arnold found a letter from Mrs. Ray Phillips Arnold and sought her out, it was said.

New Chest Reports Add to Fund Raised

The Community Chest individual division met at Rich's Wednesday when Frank H. Neely, president of the Chest, announced that since November 22, when $308,000 was reported raised, the fund for 1934 has been increased to $353,750. The groups division has been responsible for most of this increase and is still actively at work in firms seeking 100 per cent solicitation.

One hundred per cent firms not heretofore announced are John B. Daniel, Inc., Atlanta Harness and Reed Manufacturing Company, Capital City Laundry, Guthman Laundry, May's Laundry, Trio Laundry, National Manufacturing Company and Silver's 5 and 10-cent stores.

The groups division, with a quota of $93,000, expects by December 15 to be well over $100,000, according to Charles J. Currie, chairman. The individual division reviewed its work. It has $20,000 more in prospect to raise. A considerable number of former givers to the Chest are still to be seen and many of the volunteer solicitors have agreed to aid in the mop-up campaign. Joseph Horacek and Mrs. Oscar Palmour are co-chairmen of the individual division.

The advance gift division is still at work with the prospect of receiving about 100 more pledges ranging from $100 upward.

The campaign is short on this date $80,000. The solicitors in the various divisions are resolved to bridge this gap within the next ten days.

TWO MORE BOUND OVER IN TROLLEY ROBBERIES

Two more negroes arrested in connection with street car holdups and other robberies were bound over to the state courts Wednesday afternoon in recorder's court, and bond for the two—Richard Matthews, of 982 Mayson-Turner road, and Abe Terentine, of 655 Lester street—was set at $3,000 each.

Two other negroes and two white men already have been bound over in connection with the series of robberies in the last few weeks. Matthews and Terentine were arrested by the "flying squad"—composed of Lieutenant A. S. Acree, Detectives Norton and Wallace, and Special Investigators Elsberry and Rolader. The negroes, charged with highway robbery, were identified by several street car operators, and others, as having held them up.

47 DROPPED AT ALTO, NO CUT IN SERVICE

Chairman E. E. Lindsey of the state board of control announced Wednesday that 47 of the 179 employees at the State Tuberculosis sanatorium at Alto had been dropped from the pay roll, saving a total of $29,000 yearly. Mr. Lindsey said the reductions were made in order for the sanatorium to get within its budget.

Mr. Lindsey said that the cuts would not affect the service at the institution.

"Heretofore there have been 179 employees to care for 244 patients," the board chairman said. "We have reduced the number of employees to such an extent that we now have about one employee for every two patients and we believe that there are plenty to continue to render good service to the patients."

CANDLER FIELD WORK STARTS NEXT MONDAY

Actual grading work at Candler field through co-operation of the CWA will be delayed until Monday, it was announced Wednesday night by W. D. Marshall, field engineer, in order that the municipality may provide necessary equipment.

The $200,000 project will be begun in reality at that time and more than 100 men are expected to be placed at work early Monday morning.

Jack Gray, airport manager, Wednesday was in New Jersey on business, but is expected back in Atlanta the latter part of the week. Atlanta already has provided $4,220 as the municipality's part of the Candler field improvements.

GREBE.

On a short field trip with some friends the other day we had the pleasure of watching a grebe at some distance. Popularly known as Hell-diver, or Didapper, the grebe is one of the most interesting of all water birds in this part of the world.

Along with the great northern diver, or loon, and such birds as Holboell's grebe, eared grebe, and least grebe, the pied-billed grebe (and we suspect that this was the bird we saw, although we could not approach closely for certain identification) is placed in the avian order Pygopodes. All of these are diving birds, and if one should take the trouble to look it up, it will be found that they are all very similar to the toothed diver of the Kansas Chalks, which is known as Hesperornis. These birds have the legs far back on the body, near the tail, and are awkward on land. Numerous observations of trained men as well as illiterate woodsmen (whose observations are just as accurate in many cases as those of the scientist) indicate that the divers cannot fly except when they take off from water. Seton reported that some grebes once lighted on some thin ice that had the appearance of open water and were unable to take wing again. They were, I believe, killed by some animal.

The nests of grebes are interesting affairs. They consist in the main of actual rafts of water-soaked vegetation. These may float on marshy places near the edge of a lake, or they may be islands of a sort, anchored nearer the edge of open water.

Food for grebes consists largely of fish and other forms of aquatic life with some vegetable matter. Although I have never examined the stomach contents of a grebe, I have it on the best authority that there is usually a mass of feathers contained in the stomach. It seems that the grebes pluck their own breast feathers, although for what reason is not known. Chapman reports having found 331 body feathers in the stomach of a western grebe "not more than three days old."

These breast feathers, have long

AUGUSTA AREA TO GET NEW RAIL-WATER RATE

New rail-water rates for freight "by steamer to Augusta" and "steamer from Augusta" will go into effect within 60 or 90 days, it was said Wednesday at the office of the Southern Freight Association.

The new rates, supplementing all rail rates in the territory at a saving the freight association said may approximate 20 per cent, are the result of several years effort to put rail-water rates into effect because of Augusta's position on the Savannah river. The rates were ordered some time ago by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

It was stated that the new rates would affect all rail freight traffic within approximately a 100-mile radius of Augusta.

been considered equally valuable with certain furs. They are exceptionally fine in texture, satiny in appearance, and have been used in making exquisite turbans and similar articles. Fortunately, there has been a sharp decrease in this traffic of grebe feathers, and when they are given suitable breeding grounds and immunity from harm, they may again approach their old abundance.

ATLANTANS FACE TREK OF 400 MILES FOR LEGAL LIQUOR

Wanna buy a drink? All right, you can buy it in Atlanta illegally, but, if you want to make a legal purchase of whisky, prepare for a trek of at least 400 miles, unless you can find a dealer somewhere in Tennessee at a site not within four miles of a schoolhouse.

If you'll remember your Scopes case, you must have the idea that there isn't any place in Tennessee more than four miles from schoolhouse. And anyway, if you bought a quart in Tennessee, under the law you couldn't transport it.

So, let's figure on another state. Such as Louisiana, with New Orleans 400 miles from Atlanta and anything goes! Or Illinois, where a man can quench a thirst by traveling approximately 400 miles from Atlanta. South Carolina is nearer, but you can get only one quart a month, and then only on order of the court for medicinal purposes. Indiana, within the 400-mile radius of Atlanta, has not promulgated its liquor rules as yet.

Making Movies Is a Lot of Fun--- for the Spectators

EN ROUTE HOME WITH GEORGIA TEAM, Dec. 6.—It's still magic to me—the creating of these stage sets for movie productions.

And, incidentally, when a movie comes to your town featuring Aline MacMahon, go see it. Especially if it happens to be one wherein she plays the part of a girl who is co-owner, with a second young lady, of a gas and oil station and tourist camp beside a desert road.

I saw it last week at the Warner Brothers First National studio. George Thomas, one-time newspaperman and now chief of publicity, had invited us out.

One walks into one of those great buildings housing sound equipment and all the myriad of things necessary to producing a picture—and finds most anything.

They were preparing this desert scene for Miss MacMahon when I saw this set. They had hauled in sand and gravel from the desert. It was all there. The gas pumps, the house with tables for barbecue sandwiches inside, the tourist cabins and all that—they were all there.

But what got me was the atmosphere. It was the big lights. They supply plenty heat. But they had focused a giant battery of lights on that sandy stretch of gravel so that it glared white and hot as if it were under the blazing desert sun.

REAL ACTING.

I stood there behind the cameramen, the technicians and the property men.

They had the sound machines rolled over. They held a number before the camera and slapped two sticks together to register sound.

"Quiet, please," said the director. And a caller repeated it through a loud speaker that echoed through the vast building.

And then Aline MacMahon and the leading man stepped into the film, standing by a gas pump. It was deathly still.

It was the old, old story. The girl had left him and gone away to start anew. And he had found her by accident. She stood there in old overalls, a pair of small wrenches in her hip-pocket, grease on her hands.

It was all patently make-up, but when she began to speak her little piece I forgot it. They finished the lines and he walked out of the picture, standing just behind the camera with me while she finished her scene.

It called for her to register something akin to despair and then turn and walk onto the porch of the filling station sandwich house and go through a door.

Her feet scuffed through the gravel and she pulled open the door, a pathetic droop to her shoulders, and went in.

"Cut," said Director Leroy, his voice paying tribute, "there is one scene we won't have to take over."

I am a sucker for acting. And this MacMahon girl can act. For a moment there I was out in a hot desert sun watching tragedy. I can recommend the MacMahon girl. She isn't a dizzy doll. She has something on the ball.

CAGNEY AND JOLSON.

They work, these movie people. The strain is something like the newspaper strain. It's all competition. It requires nerve stamina and is an emotional drain.

I watched Jim Cagney go over and over one scene. It was a short scene from "His Chasers" and it called for him to suddenly leap from his deck, throw an inkwell through a door, grab a fellow by the throat and shake him, all the while yelling threats.

It was a tempestuous scene, requiring fast action, vocal muscular and mental. When they had done it twice they were both all in and rested.

Al Jolson was doing "The Wonder Bar." And it was a wonder bar, the one built on the stage with the dance floor beside it. Jolson was doing a scene, a short one, getting the chorus girls to hurry and dress for the next number. It was all fast and furious.

The Jean Harlow influence must be fading. I saw no platinum blonds in the big chorus.

AS THE EARTH TURNS.

Quite the greatest set seen was one of the farm house for the picture, "As the Earth Turns." They had gone out, got themselves enough dirt to build a small hill and had built a farm house on top of it.

There was a scene being shot inside in the kitchen. It involved two women, one of them carrying dirty dishes from the table to the sink while she talked with the other.

They did it over and over again. "Gee," said the young girl, whose name I did not ask, not being a movie fan, "these dishes smell."

"That's real atmosphere," said the director.

And so the two hard-working farm girls went through it once more—

"Mary, what would you say if I left Jim?"

The winter scenes, with snow made of salt and corn flakes, got me also.

Just a sucker on tour, I guess. But these people do work hard. And the guys who build these sets are my boys. They are the real artists.

THEY ASK FOR BOBBY JONES.

Bobby Jones' pictures were made at this studio. And they all asked about him. He is most popular wherever he goes.

The Jones influence started the entire studio to playing golf and that has, I judged, continued. They still laugh here at the story of the cameraman who knew nothing of golf, who complained to his friend, during the filming of a picture, that "this guy Jones must not be so hot. It required four tries before he sank a mashie put of 30 yards."

Harbin and Almand Feathers To Play At Heights Tonight

Promoter Frank Bettis will stage another wrestling card at the Lakewood Heights arena tonight.

Sully Harbin will tackle Son Almand in the main match, which will be a not-time-limit, winner take all. Harbin challenged Almand at the arena last Thursday, which Son gladly accepted. The two front rows will be moved out of the arena so spectators will not get hurt when these two grapplers meet.

Young Americus will meet Gentleman John Mauldin.

Red Dugan, of Marietta, will meet Red Powell, Atlanta, in the opening one-hour match.

As a special attraction, a bean-bag battle royal will be staged.

HUBBELL LEADS NATIONAL ACES WITH 1.66 MARK

Also Tops Rivals in Four Other Departments, Official Records Reveal.

By Hugh S. Fullerton.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Carl Hubbell, the slender southpaw from Oklahoma, whose hurling played such an important part in the New York Giants' victories in the National league pennant race and the World Series, turned up with another amazing feat today when the official 1933 National league pitching records were made public.

Pitching in 45 games, Hubbell established a record of allowing only 1.66 earned runs per nine-inning game. That mark was the lowest made in the league since 1916, when Grover Cleveland Alexander led the league with a 1.55 average.

OTHER RECORDS.

Besides leading all the other hurlers in this index of effectiveness, Hubbell pitched the greatest number of innings of any hurler in the circuit, 309, won the greatest number of games, 23; led the circuit with 10 shutouts and established a new league record for consecutive scoreless innings with 46 straight from July 13 to August 1. The former record was 44 in a row, established by Ed Rubeck of the Cubs, in 1908.

Hubbell also stood third in the league in the averages of games won and lost, with 23 victories and 12 defeats for a .657 mark. Leading him were Lyle (Bud) Tinning, of Chicago, who won 13 games and lost 6, for a .684 average, and Lanny Ben of Cincinnati, who compiled a .687 average with 20 victories and 10 defeats.

Two other records were made during the 1933 season. Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean, the leucocyst right-hander of the St. Louis Cardinals, made a new strike-out mark for one game by whiffing 17 of the Chicago Cubs. The old record of 16, the best since 1900, was held jointly by Frank Hahn, of Cincinnati; Christy Mathewson, of the Giants; and Nap Rucker, of Brooklyn.

1933 STRIKE OUTS.

For the whole season, Dean had 190 strikeouts to lead the league for the second successive year. Dizzy took part in the greatest number of games, 48, and hurled 26 complete games, to tie with Warneke for the lead in that respect.

The other record went to Adolph Lissaman of the Phillies, who appeared in 45 games without pitching one complete game. The old mark of 44 was held by William E. Rubeck, of Brooklyn.

Lissaman also was the league's leading finisher, winding up 25 games.

On the wrong side of the picture, Paul Derringer, of Cincinnati, was the big loser, with 27 defeats; Larry French, of Pittsburgh, who faced 1,200 batters, allowed the greatest number of hits, 290, doing it for the third straight year; Leroy (Bud) Parmelee, of the Yankees, made 14 wild pitches; Bill Hallahan, of St. Louis, gave 98 walks; Walter Beck, of Brooklyn, yielded 128 runs, and Tex Carleton, of St. Louis, allowed 104 earned runs.

TEN LEADERS.

Records of the leading ten pitchers on the basis of earned run averages, followed:

Willard Convicted Of Battery Charge

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Convicted on a charge of battery, Jess Willard, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, will be sentenced Saturday in municipal court.

The charge grew out of a fight Willard is alleged to have had with Henry Legroz, truck driver, and his father, Henry Legroz, as the result of a collision between Willard's automobile and a truck driven by the son.

Witnesses for the prosecution testified Willard was under the influence of liquor at the time of the accident.

Willard denied the charge. "One fellow ran up behind me and grabbed my legs and the other kicked me in the face," Willard testified. "I wanted to get into a position to knock them over, but I couldn't. I never saw anything like it in all my years in the ring."

Yawkey and Collins Spike Grove Report

BOSTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Tom Yawkey, president of the Boston Red Sox, and Eddie Collins today returned to Boston after a three weeks' absence and their first move was to try to settle rumors that "Lefty" Grove and Max Bishop, of the Athletics, were as good as sold to the Boston Red Sox.

"There'll be no Red Sox trading until the American league meet in Chicago next week," Collins said. "Tom and I were on a vacation in South Carolina, not shopping about for ball players."

TEXAS DENIES CHEVIGNY NAMED

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 6.—(AP)—W. E. Metzenthin, chairman of the athletic council of the University of Texas, today denied reports that the council had agreed to employ Jack Chevigny, St. Edward's University coach, to succeed Clyde Littlefield, resigned as Texas head coach.

Football fans had spread the word that Chevigny had been agreed on at last night's council meeting, when Littlefield turned in his resignation after having first been re-elected to continue in the place he filled for seven years.

"The athletic council feels the selection of a football coach is a proposition which requires careful study and not hasty action," Metzenthin said. "We have several men in mind."

Chevigny came to St. Edward's from Notre Dame, where he was a football coach for 10 years.

He won the conference championship with the Tigers this year, losing only one game.

Clyde Littlefield Resigns at Texas

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Clyde Littlefield today had relinquished his job as head football coach at the University of Texas.

After seven years of coaching the Longhorns, during which they won two Southwest Conference gridiron championships and placed second twice.

In a secret session of the university athletic council last night, the council recommended the renewal of his contract for the years 1934-35; but Littlefield, after expressing appreciation of the action, asked that "under the present circumstances" he be relieved of his duties as football coach.

The council, however, acceded to his request that he be retained as track coach—track squads coached by him have won seven Southwest Conference titles.

No action was taken immediately on the selection of a football coach to succeed Littlefield.

MEHRE FAVORS LEAVING RULES ENTIRELY ALONE

Except That Ball Should Be Brought Out 15 Yards.

By Ralph McMill.

NEWPORT, Ark., Dec. 6.—Retention of the football rules "as is" will be the platform of the Georgia coaches who left the Bulldog football party here tonight for New Orleans and the meeting of the Southern Football Coaches Association.

There is but one minor exception to this, Coach Harry Mehre and H. J. Stegeman, the latter a member of the national rules committee believe that the ball should be brought 15 yards from the side line instead of 10 as under the present rule.

The agreement on 10 yards last year was a compromise. Otherwise Georgia coaches favor no change in rules.

This means of course they want the present dead-ball rule on fumbles retained.

NONSENSE.

"All nonsense to say the offense has too many advantages," said Head Coach Mehre. The fact is a certain group of coaches has concentrated on defense to the exclusion of offense.

As a rule they have developed their defense so well they find it difficult to score. But not all have done this. There is Howard Jones for instance, he has specialized in offense. He has not contributed a thing to defense.

His game is the offensive game. I am a lot of authority on his offense having seen it score against our team. That's all that's wrong. It's a matter of specializing, and the rules do not need changing.

They are fine as they are. Bringing the ball in 10 yards helped speed up the game. Bringing it in 15 will help the more and will also be a boon to the offense. It will force the defense to cover more on the weak side than they had to when the ball was in just 10 yards.

MEHRE STEGEMAN.

Ten wasn't quite enough. Fifteen will give them room in which to maneuver. Mehre and Stegeman will attend the meeting, meanwhile, the Georgia football party is eager to reach home. The long march back from Los Angeles where Georgia lost to Southern California State Sunday has not been at all tiresome as a trip usually is after a defeat.

The Georgia team played a great game against the Trojans and had nothing to regret after it was done.

The first half was scoreless until the last two minutes of play. Athens turned out to greet this team which will leave Atlanta at noon for Athens. The trip has been a marvelous one with no illness and no untoward incident to mar it.

Stegeman was Tuesday night a birthday dinner and party on the train for Mrs. Harry Mehre.

The association enters the season with three leagues, two boys and one girls. All games will be played at the Y. W. C. A.

The league which will play on Thursday nights is the American. The National will play on Tuesday nights, with the opening night December 12.

After the 1933 season, both players were immensely popular with Atlanta football fans, who saw and admired their superb play for three years with their respective Alma Maters. It is doubtful if Dixie has ever seen a better tackle than Singleton or a smarter, more versatile quarterback than Bobby Dodd.

Godwin, Rosenbloom Meet December 16

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(UP)—Articles for a 10-round, non-title bout between Maxie Rosenbloom, of New York, light-heavyweight champion, and Bob Godwin, of Florida, to be held at West Palm Beach, December 14, were signed today.

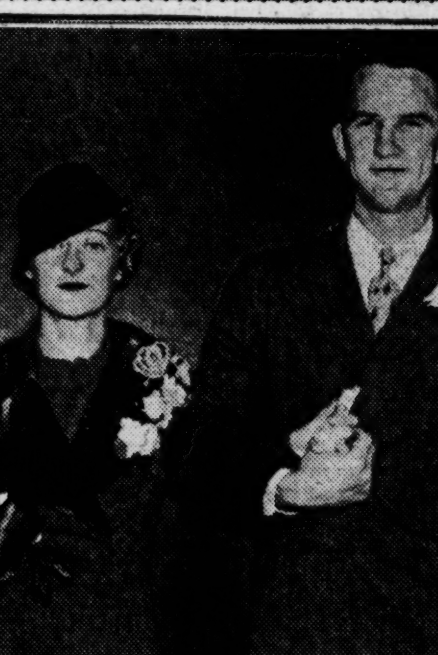

Following the close of his playing career, Georgia Tech immediately negotiated for his services as backfield coach and he joined Coach Alexander.

He and Miss Davis were united in matrimony by the Rev. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church.

PRO GRID DEAL.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The Eagles, Philadelphia member of the National Professional Football league, today announced the signing of Jim MacMahon and Hale Waters, line men who played with the Boston Redskins during the last season. Popular Couple Wed

COACH BOBBY AND MRS. DODD.

Bobby Dodd, Miss Davis Quietly Married Here

Popular Vol Star and Tech Coach and Bride Leave on New Orleans Honeymoon.

By Jimmy Jones.

Dan Cupid, who seems to have taken over the Atlanta football situation since the close of the season last Saturday, called the signal for another All-American yesterday.

And this time Robert Lee (Bobby) Dodd, the greatest quarterback ever to call the signals for University of Tennessee, and now Georgia Tech's popular backfield coach, responded with a meek "I do."

Bobby and Miss Alice Davis, sister of "Wink" Davis, one of Tech's outstanding backfield stars of the past season, were quietly married Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents at 259 Eleventh street.

The wedding, witnessed only by members of the immediate family and a few friends, was the second within a week so quietly celebrated by two outstanding football figures and an Atlanta girl. It followed two days after that of Freddie Singleton, a former All-American star at Alabama, and Miss Nancy Napier of this city, who were married here Monday.

Incidentally, Dodd was selected as quarterback and Singleton at tackle on many of the All-American teams picked after the 1932 season. Both players were immensely popular with Atlanta football fans, who saw and admired their superb play for three years with their respective Alma Maters. It is doubtful if Dixie has ever seen a better tackle than Singleton or a smarter, more versatile quarterback than Bobby Dodd.

THE FIRST TEAM.

Ends—Fayet, Howard, and Davis, Birmingham-Southern; Everett, Howard, and Hitt, Municipal College.

THE RESERVE ELEVEN.

Ends—Barkdale, Centre, and Harrison, Mercer.

Tackles—Camp, Mercer, and Merritt, Chattanooga.

Guards—Spah, Howard, and Morrison, Millsaps.

Center—Ollinger, Chattanooga.

Backs—McQuinn, Mercer; Hendren, Centre; Johnson, Birmingham-Southern and Venable, Chattanooga.

On their return here, they will make their home at 2855 Peachtree road. Dodd will continue in his position as Tech's backfield coach.

Miss Davis, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert B. Davis, has many friends in Atlanta. She is a graduate of Girls' High school and was president of the Sigma Delta sorority there her senior year. She is an attractive blond.

FROM KINGSFORD.

Dodd hails from Kingsford, Tenn., where he played on his high school football team and then entered University of Tennessee at Knoxville, there to establish himself as one of the greatest players in the history of that institution.

Major Bob Neyland, his coach, trusted his judgment at running the team infinitely and Dodd single-handedly steered the Vols to a long series of triumphs. He was an exceptionally brilliant passer and kicker and extremely cool under fire in an important game.

Following the close of his playing career, Georgia Tech immediately negotiated for his services as backfield coach and he joined Coach Alexander.

He and Miss Davis were united in matrimony by the Rev. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church.

SAUER BEATS TWO OPPONENTS AT AUDITORIUM

Bafford Is Delayed and 'Iron Man' Pete Steals Show.

Pete Sauer, rated second only to Jim London, the champion, won a double victory Wednesday night at the city auditorium before an unusually large crowd.

Sauer, after losing the first fall, won two straight falls and a decision over Dick Davis and then came back to beat Frank Spear, former Georgia Tech football star. The Georgia Tech football star, who was traveling by airplane and was unable to reach the city, due to fog and rain, Bafford was halted at Chattanooga en route to Atlanta.

The main match was first on the program and was full of action during the last two falls. Davis won the first in 33 minutes with a body block and was the aggressor practically all the way.

Sauer came back to square the match in 17 minutes with a body block, after being thrown several times with a body slam.

Spear and Sauer gave the crowd plenty of action in the 15 minutes and the match ended with both wrestlers practically out. Sauer won with flying tackle, an offensive that both used extensively during the last 10 minutes in the ring.

Standard Ball Sought For Organized Teams

Harridge Favors Uniform Baseball for All Leagues To Cut Expenses.

By Paul Mickelson, Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The American league not only is anxious for a uniform baseball among the two majors, but heartily favors a standardized ball for every league of every classification from Yankee stadium to the cow pasture diamonds of Cedar Corners, President Will Harridge said today.

A standardized baseball, used throughout the nation where the game is organized, would be a tremendous factor in baseball's march back to prosperity for majors and minors alike, the American league head said.

"A uniform baseball for all organized baseball not only would improve the game, but would result in the saving of vast sums of money now wasted," Harridge explained. "For years, club owners have been wasting big sums of cash on players, who are permitted to compete in games with dirty batting averages with unusually lively baseballs. The club owners notice that Joe Doe batted .400 in some league of low classification and stage a race among their scouts to land his contract. What happens? When Joe Doe has to bat against a conservative baseball, he can't hit his weight."

CLUBS LOSE MONEY.

"The result, naturally, is that a club owner loses badly needed cash because he is fooled by the averages. Not only major league club owners are fooled this way. The same losses are incurred right down the line as league after league dips into the player marts for material."

So far, Harridge explained further, the American league club owners haven't had an opportunity to discuss the National league proposals for a uniform baseball among the two majors, but the question will be taken up at the annual league meetings in December 12 to 14. The only hitch seen in the proposal is the possibility that contracts for the 1934 baseballs may interfere. Last season, the National league ball was similar to that used in the American except that the cover was about "two hairs" thicker.

Going back to the old major league custom of spending big sums of cash on good looking minor leaguers with fancy batting averages, Harridge pointed out that all the players purchased by the American league last winter, only two out-and-out rookies lived up to expectations. Seven other recognized "rookies" made good, but all of them had to be sent to minor league farms for a year or two of seasoning.

AVERAGES DIFFER.

A glimpse at the list of batting champions of all leagues shows their averages ranged from .336 in the American and Texas leagues to high figures of .410 in the Pacific Coast, Mississippi Valley and New England leagues. Four of the 1933 minor league batting champions formerly played in the majors or failed in their tryouts in big time.

Discussing business expected to come up before the majors in their joint session here, Harridge said the radio broadcasting question would be brought up, but doubted if anything would be done about it. The club owners seemed too divided on the proposal to abolish broadcasts of games.

The proposal to have another all-star game between picked players of both leagues also will be discussed together with prospective transfer rule changes for players.

Russell, Moore Attend Dixie Meet

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Coaches and faculty athletic directors of the nine colleges composing the Dixie conference will open a two-day meet here tomorrow to discuss general football problems and changes in the rules governing the sport.

The meeting will open tomorrow night and close Friday afternoon with a banquet at Spring Hill College, which is host to the conference convention.

Those representing the schools within the Dixie conference are Ocala, Caney and Coach I. P. McLean, Howard College; J. Enright and Coach Jack Gillen, Birmingham Southern; B. Ware and Coach Lake Russell, Mercer; J. W. Edwards and Coach Cecil Moore, University of Chattanooga; Dr. O. W. Swann and Coach Jimmy Haygood, Southwestern (Memphis); A. E. Porter and Coach E. Kuhn, Centre College; E. A. Wood and Coach Stanley Robinson, Mississippi College; Professor White Vanhook and Coach H. H. Hays, and Mike Donahue and Coach R. J. "Moon" Duncanson, Spring Hill College.

These players will be reinforced by Everett Katz, All-American forward at Syracuse in 1930 and since a member of an eastern league professional club.

Atlanta is a member of a four-club league, which includes, at present, Chattanooga, Birmingham, Knoxville and Atlanta, with the possibility of two more clubs being added.

The Atlanta club will play every Friday evening at home. Between league games, they will play against independent quintets and have games tentatively booked with the Brown Paper Company, of Monroe, La.; the Jolly Cab Five, of Memphis; the New York Celtics and others.

Other teams interested in games may write Mr. Richman at the Hotel Ansley, Atlanta.

An effort will be spared to give Atlanta one of the strongest and most colorful professional fives in this section. Mr. Richman said. Admission to local games will be 50 and 25 cents, with lady and male escort being admitted to reserved seats for $1.

SHANK DEATH ORDER IS EXPECTED TODAY

BENTON, Ark., Dec. 6.—(AP)—The death sentence will be passed today upon Mark H. Shank, Akron (Ohio) attorney, and quadruple poison slayer, in the event a motion for a new trial is overruled by Circuit Judge Thomas E. Toler.

Shank was convicted last Friday of the murder of Alvin Colley, also of Akron, who with his wife and two young sons were killed by poison at a picnic lunch in the woods near here last August. The jury fixed his punishment at death in the electric chair.

GREAT TENPIN MATCH SLATED HERE SATURDAY

Alliance and Eagles Are Matched for Five Games.

By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Based on figures gathered by the United Press from all parts of the country and tabulated today, college football attendance for 1933 increased 13 per cent, as compared with the previous season, and appears to have recovered approximately half the business lost at the turnstiles during the 1931-32 decline.

Reduced ticket prices generally have helped the gridiron recovery program but the extent to which popular support has been rallied to the sport, following two somewhat disastrous seasons, is not yet apparent. The average attendance for 1933 was 13 per cent higher than for 1932, and a drop of 10 per cent in 1931.

PROS SHOW INCREASE.

At the same time, reports from eastern clubs in the National Professional Football league indicate increases in attendance this year ranging as high as 50 per cent. Figures for the entire circuit have not been made public but official sources today revealed the attendance for games in the New York area was doubled. Nearly as big increases were reported for Boston, Brooklyn and Philadelphia, where the advent of Sunday games helped the attendance.

The average attendance for 18 professional football games played in the metropolitan area was 18,000 and equaled the average crowd for 29 college games played in the same district.

The cross section of college attendance, on which the national figures are based, covered the 1932-33 season, ranging as high as 100 per cent in the cases of Fordham, St. Mary's and Santa Clara, while only 11 show decreases for the 1933 season.

The aggregate attendance for the entire 46 colleges and universities was 7,026,408, compared with 6,200,000 for the 1932-33 season. This represents a gain of 917,393 or approximately 13 per cent.

MIDWEST GAINS.

The middle west recorded the biggest gains, with 13 colleges exceeding the 1932-33 total attendance by 350,000. The increase among far western schools, 14 in number, totaled 328,000. Eleven eastern institutions showed an aggregate increase of 219,000.

The south, on the basis of reports from eight schools, barely held its own with an increase of 21,000. The eastern leaders are Navy and Army, with 350,000 and 322,700, respectively. Attendance records were broken by Nebraska and Kansas in the Big Six and Big Ten in the Rocky Mountain Conference.

Following is a comparison of the sectional figures for this year and last:

Section	1932-33 Attendance	1933 Attendance	% Increase
East	2,296,478	2,676,533	16.6
Midwest	1,800,000	2,150,000	19.4
South	1,000,000	1,328,415	32.8
West	706,928	985,659	39.3
Totals	5,803,406	6,740,607	16.1

FARM FOUNDATION CREATED TO AID RURAL WELFARE

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—(UP)—Formation of a large permanent trust fund to be used for the general welfare of the rural population of the United States was announced today by Frank O. Lowden, former Illinois governor and agricultural leader.

The fund, to be known as the "Farm Foundation," will consist of 21 trusts for agricultural research and experimental work, education, and encouragement of co-operation among farmers.

Amount of the endowment was withheld pending completion of organization. Announcement of the foundation's formation was forced in advance of the planned date by the death Sunday of Alexander Legge, president of the National Harvester Company and former chairman of the federal farm board under President Hoover.

Legge, said Lowden, already had contributed $100,000 to the foundation and in his will he bequeathed to the fund several other large sums of money. Legge, who had contributed large amounts of money to the foundation, was a member of the National Harvester Company and former chairman of the federal farm board under President Hoover.

TENNESSEE TO 'FIRE' TEN BEER INSPECTORS

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Because revenue from Tennessee's beer tax has been "very disappointing," dismissal of the ten beer tax inspectors, effective January 1, was decided upon today.

Finance Commissioner Daney Fort explained in a letter to the inspectors that "as only four per cent of the amount collected was allowed to administer the law, the unit has been overdrawn every month since it commenced."

The inspectors receive $125 a month and expenses. Beer was legalized in Tennessee May 1 and official estimates were that it would produce $1,000,000 annually in revenue. However, collections for the seven months 3.2 has been legal amounted to only $130,437.77. November revenue was the lowest since beer was legalized, being $38,499. The peak of approximately $30,000 was reached in June.

First Sterilization Looms in Germany

DUISBURG, Germany, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The first sentence of sterilization in Germany was pronounced by a court today upon a 33-year-old laborer convicted of a criminal act.

Carrying out of the sentence was for the time being left for the accused to consent to it. His wife, however, agreed to the operation. The sentence carries 20 months imprisonment in addition.

The name of the defendant was not disclosed.

Captain Hicks Gives An Amazing Exhibition

Firearms Expert Thrills Crowd With Skill on Gray and Rainy Day Here.

By Jack Troy.

You could say he does it with mirrors and still be correct. And you could imply he employs a certain amount of black magic or some other kind of magic and feel reasonably safe.

Doggone that man, Captain Frank Hicks, firearms expert of the Peters Cartridge Company. You try to tell people about some of the amazing things he does with pistol, rifle and shotgun and they laugh—right in your face. It's very disconcerting.

But it is not nearly so disconcerting as trying to shoot after he has completed one of his amazing exhibitions.

Well, Captain Hicks was out at the splendid shooting grounds of the Capitol Gun Club yesterday. And a very fine crowd was there. Sportsmen and ladies came despite gloowering weather and intermittent rain.

Captain Hicks warmed up with a pistol, showing the right way and the wrong way to shoot. He broke stationary clay pigeon targets with consummate ease, using a mirror or turning the pistol upside down. He explained everything as he went along.

DRILLS SOAP.

He used a .22 rifle and a .30-30 rifle and then switched to shotguns. Demonstrating the power of a .22 cartridge, he asked Jack Troy to stand off a few paces and hold out a large bar of soap. It takes every nerve on the part of both. And he drilled the soap, using different kinds of .22 cartridges. One would bore a hole straight through the soap, the other would bore through and leave a gaping hole on the other side.

He would toss a .22 shell into the air and, using a rifle, clip off the bullet end. He would toss a .30-30 shell into the murky atmosphere and, using a .30-30 rifle, separate the bullet end from the powder.

It was all the more amazing considering weather conditions. The day was gray. Nature seemed weary of it all. Clouds hung low and occasionally wept.

He turned to shotguns and broke first one, two, three, four and five clay targets tossed into the air. Then, first one, then a pair, then three, then four and all five, breaking them one by one before they reached the ground.

He emptied a pistol in the flash of an eye. Five rapid shots, the exploding shells synchronized into one sound.

Demonstrating how to tell whether one's gun fitted one's shoulder he would place a clay target on the flat side of his head, hold it up and break the target without aiming.

GREAT SHOT.

Captain Hicks missed once in a while on one of the stunts, such as clipping off the bullet end of a thrown cartridge. He explained it by saying that no shooter has ever lived that has not missed. How he completed his exhibition as marvelously as he did with visibility as poor as it was, will always remain a mystery to those in attendance.

This is not the ravine of a demilitarized mind. It is simply the portrayal of the almost unbelievable skill of a great marksman.

Captain Hicks will return for another exhibition soon. He hopes for a better day next time. And if he does any better even when the sun is shining, here's one who will forget all about ambitions to become a marksman and take up some other sport, such as ping pong, or the galloping dominoes.

FAST SQUAD.

There was an exhibition by a fast squad on the skit traps following Captain Hicks' exhibition. The squad included Buddy Jones, 21x25; Ashby Taylor, 22x25; C. King, 18x25; Al Freese, 20x25; and Jack Troy, 21x25. Others shooting included W. A. Parker, 37x50; Ashby Taylor, 44x50; H. Nunnally, 64x75; C. King, using 410-gauge shot gun, 63x50; Kirk Hancock, 22x25; C. H. Hays, 40x50; H. W. Frisch, 15x25; C. L. Davis, 13x25; Charles Black, 17x25; George Hatcher, 35x50; Richard Courts, 16x25; C. Gardner, 17x25; Turner Jones, 10x25; J. K. Orr, 16x25; Oscar Davis, 17x25, and Buddy Jones, 23x25.

Viewers included W. C. Holleman, W. R. Talley, Clyde L. King, Mr. Moore and Mr. Martin.

SHUTTE LATEST INJURY; ROUGH WORK CANCELLED

Several Members of Smithie Squad Are Hurt As Big Game Nears.

By Roy White.

A steady rain and soggy field, together with another injury being added to the list of five, caused a postponement of a rough scrimmage scheduled for Tech High players Wednesday afternoon as the Smithies moved one day nearer the state championship game with Lanier High Saturday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park.

Herbert Schutte, who has been of invaluable service both as a quarterback and halfback, suffered a shoulder injury in practice Monday. His injury was not reported until late Tuesday, following a scrimmage against Lanier High players.

And with Schutte's injury to the list, which includes Berryman, Hinson, Norman Perry, "Big" Tarrant, Heywood Dowling and Titus Oakes, Coach Tolbert plans no more rough work.

Wednesday's work was largely individual instructions, with Coach Tolbert working with the backfield, Tom Alexander in charge of the tackles, guards and centers and Hub Davies working with the ends.

Lanier plays were studied in detail and there was some defensive dummy scrimmage against the Ponce de Leon players as the Smithies drilled until dark, a defense to stop Lanier Saturday.

One of the best crowds of the season is expected to witness Saturday's championship game. The Smithies are expected to win the game in detail and there was some defensive dummy scrimmage against the Ponce de Leon players as the Smithies drilled until dark, a defense to stop Lanier Saturday.

Projects, Designed to Put
5,495 to Work, Include
Paving, Grading Jobs.

Civil works projects valued at a total of $981,289.10, to provide 15 to 40 days' work for each of 5,495 men, Wednesday were made public by the Fulton county commission after the list of county requests for road repaving and grading, and sidewalk grading jobs was filed with the civil works administration.

At the commission meeting Wednesday afternoon the board voted to establish a county bureau of investigation to handle ballistics, handwriting, fingerprint and other kinds of work connected with criminal investigation, effective January 1, with John B. Winn, deputy clerk of Fulton superior court and a criminologist of 10 years' experience, in charge.

The commission approved a proposal to ask the civil works administration to develop a park on 93 acres of the alms house property in north Fulton county, after hearing a request from the Buckhead 50 Club for some park development in that section.

Boulevard Widening Approved. The commissioners also approved a plan to repave and widen Boulevard from Ponce de Leon avenue south to McDonough road, the county to furnish the necessary rock and the city and the civil works administration to participate in the job.

Authority was granted for a committee to visit Washington to follow up the county's petition for public works funds for the renovation and additions to the county jail.

Appearing before the commissioners on the Boulevard proposal were a number of citizens led by Colonel F. W. Denten and W. Brown Hayes, who appealed particularly for the elimination of the rough, turtle-back condition of South Boulevard from Confederate avenue to McDonough road.

The commission deferred action on a request of the city for aid in building an extension of the McDonough street sewer to South river. Assistant Chief of Construction W. B. Hanks, of the city, said that the city asks the county to join in buying $25,000 worth of pipe for the 15,000 feet of sewer line.

RESURVEY IS ORDERED FOR GULF-SEA CANAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has demonstrated his favorable inclination toward construction of a waterway across the Florida peninsula to link the Atlantic and the Gulf of Mexico by instructing army engineers to resurvey the project on the basis of a 30-foot channel.

It was learned at the White House today that the president felt that plans originally submitted for a 35-foot channel should be discarded because of almost prohibitive expense and the absence of real necessity for such depth at this time. Few ships of a size that would require a 35-foot channel would utilize the canal, it was explained.

Construction probably would require expenditure of about $135,000,000 and be made part of public works or civil works program, it was understood. The canal would be an important link in the eastern waterway system ranging from New England to gulf ports and would bring gulf ports much nearer to big markets of the east, officials pointed out.

DEPOSIT GUARANTY IS HIT BY ALDRICH

Chase Banker Urges Reforms in Securities Act; Criticizes Wiggins.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Modification of the securities act and the deposit insurance provision of the banking law was recommended to the senate banking committee today by Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of the Chase National bank.

The deposit insurance law, Aldrich told the senate group, might drive many banks out of the Federal Reserve system. He asserted the securities act, together with uncertainty over the value of the dollar, was strangling the long-term capital market.

In the course of his final cross-examination by the committee, claiming the two-month investigation of his bank, Aldrich again condemned even more specifically than previously some of the practices of his predecessor, Albert H. Wiggins, which have been disclosed during the inquiry.

Criticizes Wiggins.
His renewed criticism of Wiggins' methods was brought forth by a review of the disclosures of Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, who asked for Aldrich's views on the practices, one by one.

The new Chase bank head let out particularly at the procedure by which bank officers were permitted to participate in some of the profitable syndicate operations of Wiggins' personal company, the Shearman Corporation and dealings in bank stock.

After pointing out that he had recommended legislation to forbid bank officers from participating in any syndicate operations, Aldrich added: "I would go further and say I don't think bank officers should receive compensation, directly or indirectly, from the sale of securities."

Securities Act Discussed.
A question Pecora asked about evidence that the Chase bank left out certain information in advertising Cuban bond issues, led up to discussion of the securities act. Aldrich said he was strongly in favor of the law's publicity provisions and favored the fullest publicity on security issues, but voiced the following warning:

"The present virtual stagnation in the long term capital market is partly, but not wholly, due to anxiety arising from the new securities act. New issues are not being offered even of the classes of securities exempt from the operation of the securities act, such as municipals, railroad issues, or those of banks."

"Important factors, wholly independent of the securities act, among them uncertainty regarding the future value of the dollar, are obviously exerting great influence and the securities act is far from being the only explanation of immediate conditions."

Long Term Money.
Aldrich contended that the success of the administration's recovery program was dependent upon reviving the long term money market and said there was apprehension the securities act would interfere.

But he added that in his view a few very changes in the act make it "workable." He noted particularly objections to making directors of issuing corporations responsible for all the facts filed with the federal trade commission.

Pecora asked Aldrich if bankers or purchasers should bear security losses, provided there was good faith on both sides of a deal.

Aldrich replied bankers should bear the loss, but later amended the statement to say that if the banker acted in good faith and exercised "due care" the loss should be borne by the investor.

Deposit Insurance Hit.
The banker told the committee the permanent deposit insurance plan had serious dangers, particularly that part imposing unlimited liability on all banks.

"This unlimited liability will breed distrust in the strong banks, create fears among the holders of bank shares, prevent the flow of new capital into banking and contribute to general financial distrust," he testified.

Aldrich suggested if any insurance were needed permanently, the temporary plan in the new bank law with its limited liability should be extended, but contended the theory of deposit insurance was "fallacious" and that the only real solution was the creation of a sound banking system.

Britain Avoids Break With Irish Free State

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A proposal made today in the house of lords that Great Britain break off all relations with the Irish Free State was dismissed by the government as an undesirable step.

Lord Hailsham, Great Britain's minister for war, representing the government in debate over the perplexing Irish crisis, said "It is easier to break off relations than to find satisfactory means of re-establishing them."

He said it would not be "a satisfactory or helpful step."

Lord Dunsford, a distinguished British jurist, who made the proposal in the upper chamber, also suggested that higher tariffs be raised against the Irish Free State, but Lord Hailsham warned that this step might result in decreasing the government's proceeds.

VIRGINIA LEAF MEN ASK MARKET CLOSING

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Governor Pollard tonight took under advisement a proposal from dark tobacco growers of the Drake's Branch neighborhood that he close all dark tobacco warehouses until the federal government can make it possible for the growers to get a "living price" for their product.

Long Prohibition War Claimed Lives of 270

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Department of justice officials said today that 92 federal agents and 178 civilians had been killed in the efforts to enforce national prohibition.

Figures disclosed by the department said efforts to enforce the federal liquor laws cost the taxpayers $128,810,291 between January 16, 1920, and October 31, 1933.

Convictions over this period, the department said, totaled $34,907. Fines amounting to $80,337,012.77 were imposed against 404,764 persons. Records going back to 1926 showed 198,751 jail and penitentiary sentences were meted out. Property seized under the prohibition act was valued at $219,202,404.90.

Federal officers had no figures on the number of state enforcement officers or suspected civilian violators of local liquor laws who had lost their lives.

SHRINER-VETERANS TO HOLD ELECTION IN DUGOUT TONIGHT

American war veterans who are Shriner and who make up Yaarab Temple's Legion of Honor here, will hold their annual election of officers in the dugout at the Shrine mosque at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Following the selection of the new leaders, the members will repair to the Spanish room for a smoker and to pay tribute to Colonel Henry H. Green, founder of the honor legion, who will not accept the post of commander in order to devote his time to forming other posts in Georgia.

So successful have been Colonel Green's methods of organization that they were adopted several years ago for the National Association of Legion of Honor, of which he is a lieutenant commander, it was said. In the next few years Colonel Green will automatically advance to commander of the national organization.

Monte Carlo Hotel Death Victim Revealed as Mother of Boy Held

MONTE CARLO, Dec. 6.—(UP)—The mysterious death of an American woman in a hotel here assumed a new angle today when it was revealed that she was the mother of the youth heretofore regarded as her brother. After considerable difficulty in obtaining a correct identification of the dead woman, who may have been a victim of poison, it was learned she was Mary Agnes Doreen Elkington, a daughter of J. Wilson Gibbs, of 150 Broadway, New York city, and the wife of an Englishman, Frederick P. Elkington, who was located today.

Police announced this identification after being misled by her passport, which gave the name of "Marie Wilson," 20. Mrs. Elkington was said to be 36 years old. The son, held temporarily in connection with the case, is Fred Elkington, 17, known here by the last name of Wilson, which they used in registering at the hotel last Thursday. The woman was found dead in her room Monday night, and the boy was there at the time, playing a phonograph. Hotel attaches reported that mother and son had not left the room since registering Thanksgiving Day, but that meals and a quantity of wines and spirits had been taken to their quarters daily. A phonograph scratched jazz music almost constantly, the hotel people told the police, and the youth was said to have been found winding up the machine by the woman's dead body when police broke in. She had been dead 36 hours.

Young Elkington was still in a dazed condition at the jail here, police reported, and unable to give a coherent account of what occurred. He appeared under the influence of narcotics, authorities said.

The husband, who entered the case when the opening of the woman's baggage at Monaco station here revealed her real identity, said he was not aware that his wife and son were living on the Riviera.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: At 18 I am the drudge for a family consisting of myself, my mother and brother. Mother idolizes my good-for-nothing brother and brother idolizes my mother. I am not permitted to entertain Robert's boy, though I am certainly old enough to have beaux. I have enough education to get a job and earn my own living. Do you think I would be justified in trying to get away from living conditions that are almost unbearable?

CURLEY.

Answer: The Freudians have a lot to say about this anomalous situation that exists in so many homes; this decided preference of a mother for son before her daughter. But no matter from what psychological or physical cause it arises, it works havoc in the life of the girl who feels herself discriminated against and shut out of the close relationship between mother and brother. It's all very well to talk about the sheltering and protecting influence of home life as being essential to a girl in her teens. Yet when the girl is persecuted by being made a drudge for the family, when she is constantly exposed to vituperative talk and embittered by a sense of injustice at her mother's hands for loving and protecting influence of the home is a fine phrase—little more.

The advice is: Get out and find a job. Boarding house will be a haven compared to a home without love or liberty. Every girl should realize that she shouldn't leave home without having a job and without having a little cash in her pocket when she engages her room.

EMBROIDERED GIFTS WITH QUAIN-ROSS-STITCH MOTIFS.

Pattern 5029.

Samples—those who don't lose their quaintness of design, the drollness of the figures and animals, and the amusing getting into the picture—the weeping willows that droop gracefully—and the staid houses. Here they are in a collection of motifs adapted from old samplers, only done in good size crosses. They make a lovely decoration on such a variety of things, that this selection offers the opportunity of making choice gifts inexpensively. Can't you see one of these motifs on a guest towel—two of them on a runner, one at each end—on a pin-cushion? A lingerie case—a tea-cloth, and many, many other things?

In pattern 5029 you will find a transfer pattern of four motifs averaging 4-1/2 inches square and six motifs 2 inches high, color suggestions, directions for placing, and yardages for a variety of articles to which they can be applied. Price of pattern, 10 cents.

ISLAND GIRL
by FRANK R. ADAMS

What has gone before? Vernon Mabey, wealthy young New Yorker, signs for adventure but can find no suitable outlet which will give him the desired thrill. Walking home with his friend Dodd Speed, Vernon deplores the lack of romance in the world. The friends see an old man set upon by two men. Vernon and Dodd join in the fight. The assailants of the old man are put to flight. Vernon and Dodd assist the old man to Vern's home. Over the radio comes a description of a missing man, who fits the description of the friends' find. Vern and Dodd summon a taxi and depart for the address given—the yacht "Wings" at the foot of a pier in Longers. They find three other men ahead of them all in helpless condition. A girl informed the rescuers that some of the three is her father, Warner Ferguson. The old man found by Vern and Dodd proves to be the missing person. The girl searches his pockets and accuses Vern and Dodd of robbing him. She says her father has gambled away all her money. Her crew has deserted her and she is not being paid, but she says it is imperative that she be outside of Sandy Hook before daylight. Sensing mystery and adventure, Vern volunteers to ship aboard the yacht. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY—

Fortunately Irene and Vern discovered that they could be friends at least. Vern was discovering much more than that but except in just he kept it pretty much to himself. Enough under the circumstance to be slowly winning her esteem and trust. Irene knew that he was no ordinary city loafer who had shipped with her for a soft berth and a change of scene. She asked no questions as to his antecedents or history, but her gradual change of attitude told that she knew. She honored him with discussions of subjects which one would hardly have broached to an illiterate longshoreman.

Their luck in finding themselves congenial was emphasized as time went on. The poker game became so engrossing that Irene and Vern had to talk to one another if they expected to be listened to. What time he was awake when off duty he spent near the wheel, trying by cheerful conversation to keep her thoughts from dwelling too darkly on the immediate future and when he himself was steering he tried to keep her after where he could throw her an occasional verbal aside.

There were three days of feeling the way to permanent friendship. If anything lay beyond that this was no time to find out. There would be plenty of time for that when and if the crisis in Irene's affairs were successfully passed.

The morning of the fourth day dawned dim and gray. The sun shone red for a brief space before the assembling clouds had blotted it out. The wind died and "Wings" rode unusually on a slippery swell. They had had the motor going since nightfall of the day before. Irene came on deck to relieve Vern. Her gaze swung around the horizon. "What do you think?"

"I just think this craft would be safer inside that reef which is banked just below the horizon on our starboard side."

Irene shook her head. "Perhaps, but we dare not lay up. Besides this storm may last for three or four days. If we once get inside we could never get out again."

"True," Vern admitted. "I was merely telling you what I thought. If a harbor is out of the question we had better stand out a little farther. Where we are now a slight mishap to the motor with a heavy sea running would be fatal. Three or four miles more away from the reefs we would have a chance to make repairs."

Irene nodded. "You're quite right. I'll take her out while you turn in."

"To you may not stay on deck in the night," Vern said. "No, this may not break for several hours yet. It will be better for you to snatch some sleep because later we may have to make repairs. I'll call you when I need you."

Vern knew that she spoke sound sense. Since there was nothing he could do, no preparation he could make against the blow which was coming it would be better to fortify himself with some rest rather than fret about something he could not help. It might turn out to be only a mild squall after all.

Vern had not been in his bunk more than an hour before he was gently rolled out of it by the first wave of a sudden sea. It came a few minutes ahead of the wind which began to tune up the rigging before he could get his shoes on.

The poker game in the cabin was going on under difficulties because the chips would not stay in the pot and the dealer had to hand each card to the players.

Vern reported on deck. For a moment he stood in the companionway looking at the steersman. That had become a favorite light occupation with Vern lately and he indulged himself even now with the heavens getting ready to wreak their wrath upon them.

Even wind that blew her garments to nothing but form moulds failed to disturb the fiery poise of Irene. A girl and a ship are the two most graceful things in human existence. Combined their charm is more than doubled. Irene was the spirit of "Wings," balanced for a moment on its deck, swaying in absolute tempo with the sea music to which it danced.

This girl was a light in Vern's life that was rapidly growing so bright that it almost hurt him to look at it.

Irene's attention was far away over the rim of the restless horizon and he was almost at her side before she noticed him.

"What are you doing on deck?" she demanded. "This is your watch below."

"I'm a poor sailor, I guess," he lied. "I can't sleep unless you hold this cradle still."

They had to exchange ideas at the top of their lungs because the marine accompaniment was getting too loud altogether for parlor conversation. The wind was running faster than the waves now, snatching off their curling white caps, carrying them ahead and slapping them in the faces of the crew of "Wings."

Irene had headed the yacht diagonally across the trough, pulling her around square into the larger ones. So far the motor was doing its duty manfully, never missing a beat. Vern was glad they had economized on gasoline and still had nearly a tank-full in case they had to run into this storm for many hours.

Their general direction was still south and after a half an hour of crossing the waves diagonally into the wind Irene corrected this by running an equal length of time at a ninety degree angle to that course which made them slant across the crests but with the wind.

Vern understood the maneuver. She was still edging nearer to Little Cane Key. She had not forgotten that they had to be there the next day. He knew that she was not going to forget either no matter if danger and death stood in the path and ordered them to turn back.

Well, whatever she did he was with her—her cause had become his cause. Vern was no half-way fighter. He was enlisted for the war no matter what happened. Perhaps it was just as well that the other passengers could not read her mind quite then as well as he could.

"They've lived their lives," he muttered. "No more."

"What did you say?" asked the steersman.

"Luf!" she yelled.

She did. They were drenched anyway. But she smiled through it. "This is no time for sentiment!"

He laughed. This was good. They were on terms of playful comedy, then. For another thing he was glad; the portentous imminence of sea-death had for the moment lifted the weight of forboding which had bent her spirit lower and lower as they approached their destination. Apparently being face to face with actual and immediate physical danger had banished until tomorrow the necessity for introspective melancholy.

She was too wet now for oilskins. Fortunately the air was fairly warm yet and she seemed to thrive on plenty of water. She shook herself and came up smiling, a little crisp curl in her spirits as in her hair.

She looked at him quizzically, "Are you afraid?"

"Yes, scared to death. Are you?"

"Absolutely. Aint't it a grand and glorious feeling?"

They rode to the top of the next wave and peered over at black death in the hollow beyond before plunging horribly into it.

The old boat shuddered and creaked but gave to her feet again, staggeringly. Vern was glad that they were not carrying an ounce of canvas. Anything to put an additional strain on the keel and ribs would probably have proved her apart.

Acting on a discouraging thought, Vern worked himself amidships to the pump, a small pitcher-mouthed affair such as is used in cisterns and tried it. There was a little water but not much. He had it dry in 15 minutes. There was no unanimous opening of the seams as yet.

And then, as they were zig-zagging toward shore with the wind water following over the stern a larger wave than any so far came right over the transom, flooded the after deck and poured in a torrent down the companionway.

A startled cry from the surprised passengers was succeeded by a more ominous sound for a moment.

The motor began to miss. As there were only two cylinders in the heavy duty marine engine below decks to have one of them incapacitated meant an immediate loss of headway.

"Wings" began to roll sideways a little. Irene looked at Vern in apprehensive dismay.

"Stick to the wheel," he ordered, reversing their rank for the moment. "I'll see what I can do."

She gave him a grateful glance which he hoped that he would be able to earn.

Vern did know something about motors although the contraptions that animated Wings had a lot of old-fashioned and complicated parts that he was not absolutely familiar with.

Vern rushed down the companionway colliding with the dampened passengers who were headed for the deck to find out what was the matter. He shook off their demands for explanation and went forward to the engine room where the motor did its thrashing.

It was still turning over but in a despondent and aching fashion as if every gasp might be its last.

Vern had looked it over while they were under sail and knew as much as he could find out without actually taking it apart. He knew, for instance, that the ignition was the make-and-break design not ordinarily used any more except in stationary engines. That was the case with the trouble lay now. All the working parts and connections were exposed and, so far as the aft cylinder was concerned they were all wet. The water, coming in, must have splashed right over it.

Continued Tomorrow.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE No. 82

Tarzan, moving along the leafy highway, overtook Zver's expedition when it made camp for the night. As he watched them from behind a leafy screen of high-flung foliage, he noticed, though with no surprise, that they were not burdened with any treasure from Opar.

Tarzan noticed that Colt was missing. From past experience he knew what had happened at Opar and the probable fate of Wayne Colt. Years before, his own courageous Waziri had fled before the weird screams from the ruined city. He guessed that Colt had been deserted.

When night fell, Tarzan returned to the tree where he could overlook the activities of the bivouacked expedition. He watched them in silence for a long time, and then suddenly he raised his voice in a long scream that perfectly mimicked the hideous warning cry of Opar.

The effect upon the camp was instantaneous. For a moment the men sat in a paralysis of terror. Then, seizing their weapons, they came closer to the fire. With a shadow of a smile on his lips, Tarzan melted away into the jungle...
